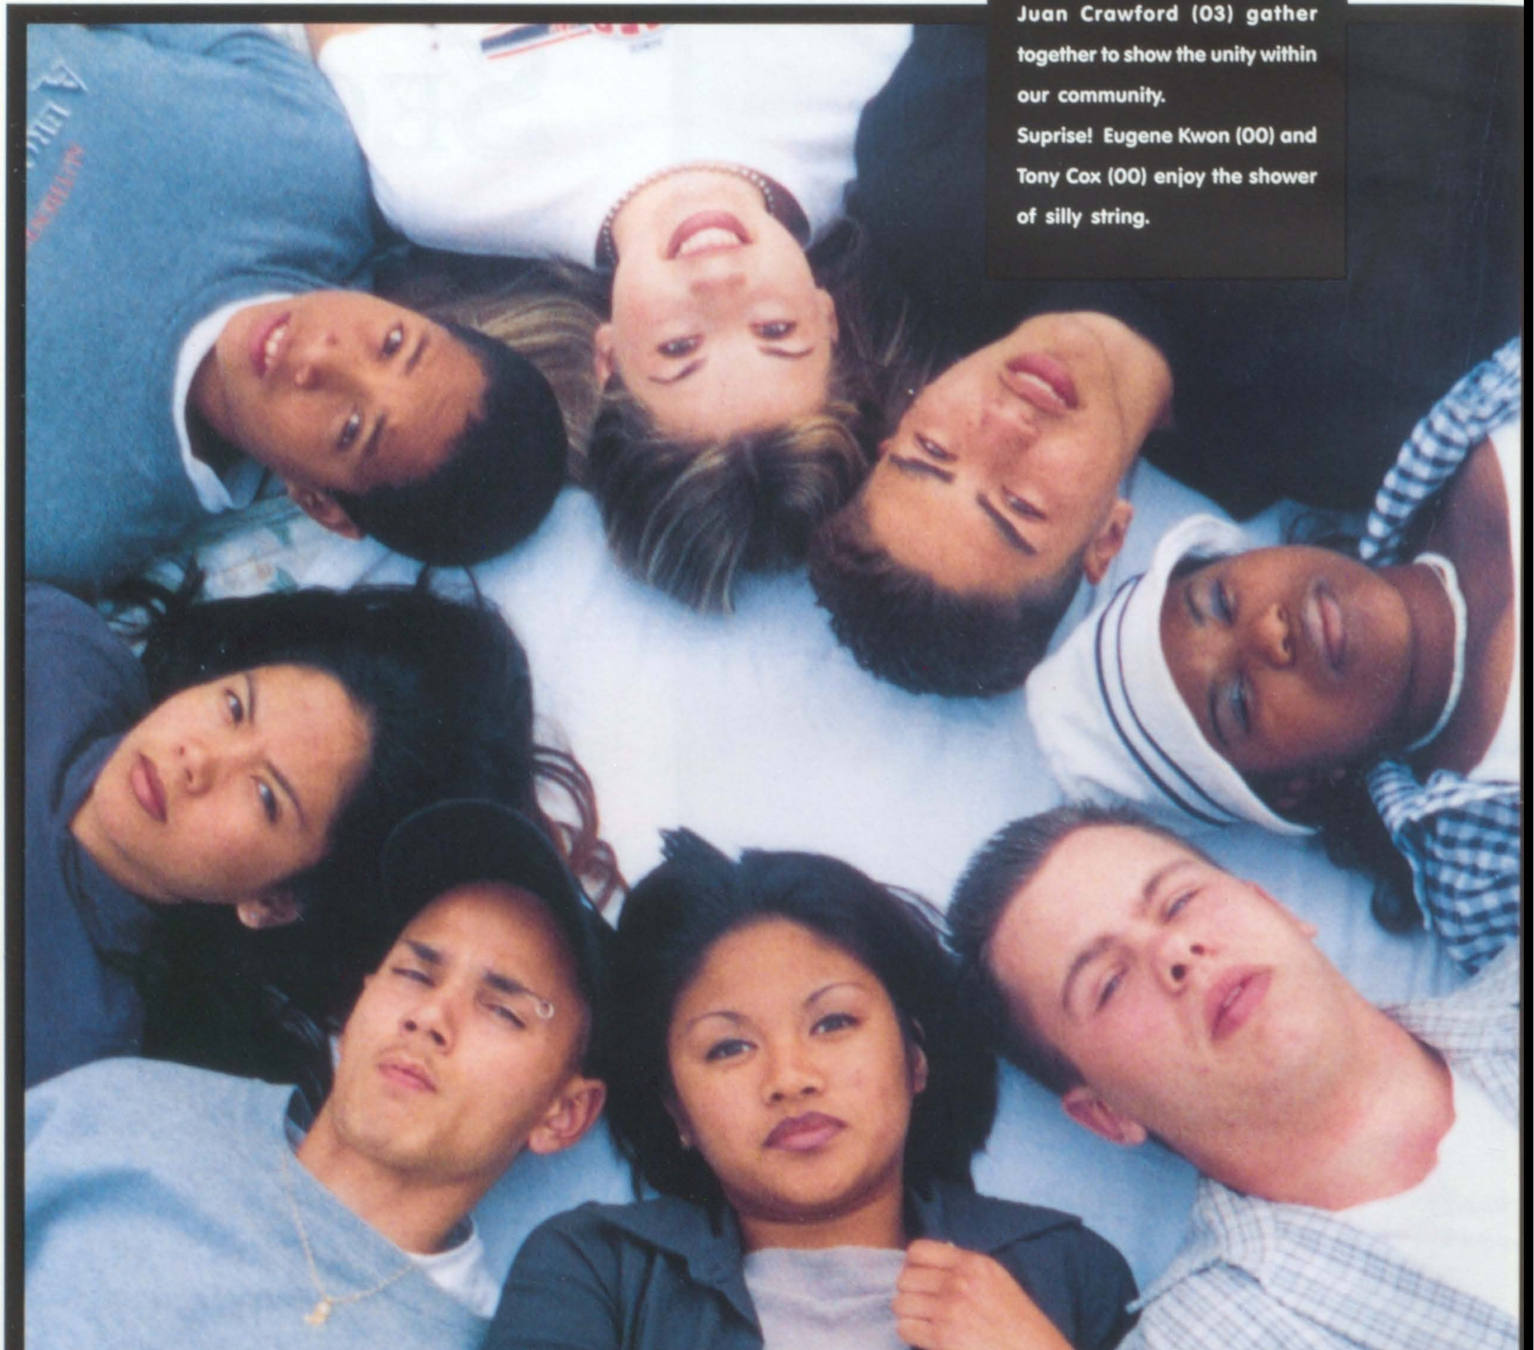
HIDDEN WITHIN

From all around the school, Kennedy students Melissa Weidner (00), Ahmad Sulaiman (01), Sparkles Sibley (02), Tyson Sacks (00), Jenn Tamayo (01), Maurice Jordan (02), Jona Velasquez (02), and Juan Crawford (03) gather together to show the unity within our community.

Suprise! Eugene Kwon (00) and Tony Cox (00) enjoy the shower of silly string.



Of the five high schools in the district, we are sometimes viewed as one of the older institutions with few programs and old technology. The introduction of the technology magnet at our school proved that wrong. Still, for financial reasons, the school district has chosen to close our school. Mrs. Judy Peeler proved that the school district did not decide to close our school because it's a "bad school" when she said, "The Fremont Unified School District decided to close our school because they don't want to address the boundary issue." Our school has the second highest Advanced Placement and Golden State Exam scores in the district. Our student body thrives, becoming successful in college and beyond. Instead of dwelling on our slated closure, we celebrate who and what we are. The teachers have grown close and relate with each other almost as a family does. "I feel that I can depend on my fellow staff for support, encouragement, and friendship," said French teacher Miriam de Schweinitz. "I feel free to go to another teacher in a different department for assistance with students. Because the staff center is central to the school, we all see each other, which keeps us close." We have all stood together with the recent threat of closure. We pull together every year and collect cans for local homeless shelters, further supporting our community. The family that has been established at our school makes it much more than just another school; it makes our school a home. Our principal, Dr. Aurora Quevedo, recently shared her pride in having become one of the most recent additions to our family, stating, "Kennedy is a place of scholarship, a place of sharing, a place of community building." Together, we stand strong in our viewpoints that we are a part of something greater than most people comprehend." Assistant Principal Vivienne Paratore said, "I think that one of the best things about Kennedy is that we [the staff] know all the students by name–we treat them as individuals." These sentiments reflect the views of the staff and students alike. We are proud of what we have achieved at our home. We honor something more beautiful than just a school. We celebrate where Fremont Unified School District's best kept secret lies...

Rachel Young and Charles Anthony Ulloa

A glance around the peaceful halls will not tell you what is the big secret behind the drive of Kennedy students. In the sea of change and diversity the answer lies deep within. For Hau Yeung (00), "It is the opportunity of meeting new people, and just being part of the diversity." While for others it is the excitement of competition, as they screamed at the top of their lungs in an attempt to drown out rival classes during Spirit Week. "For me, it is not about the competition, but about the unification of the entire student body," said, Poonam Shah (00). Still, for many the only reason they dragged themselves out of bed day after day, was to meet with friends during breaks, to catch up on gossip, and who's wearing what. According to, Kevin Tran (02), "The one thing I look forward to when I come back to school is seeing all the friends I did not see during the summer." It may be unbelievable, but some classes get as much warmth and love from students as hard earned cash. "The experience and things we learn from some of our classes are the basis and groundwork of our future," said, Michael Ghali (00). Whatever the reason may be, the word is out and the students of Kennedy are not keeping what makes them great, a secret any longer.

THE WORD IS OUT

Let your spirit show! Juniors, Ann Huynh and Natalie Lyman are not keeping their pride for thier school a secret, as they shout with joy during Spirit Week.

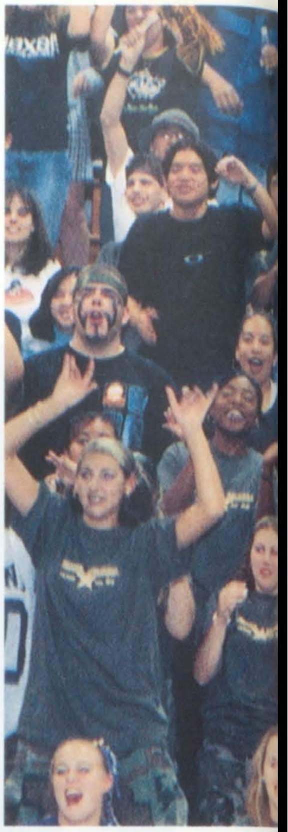
Senior Soldiers

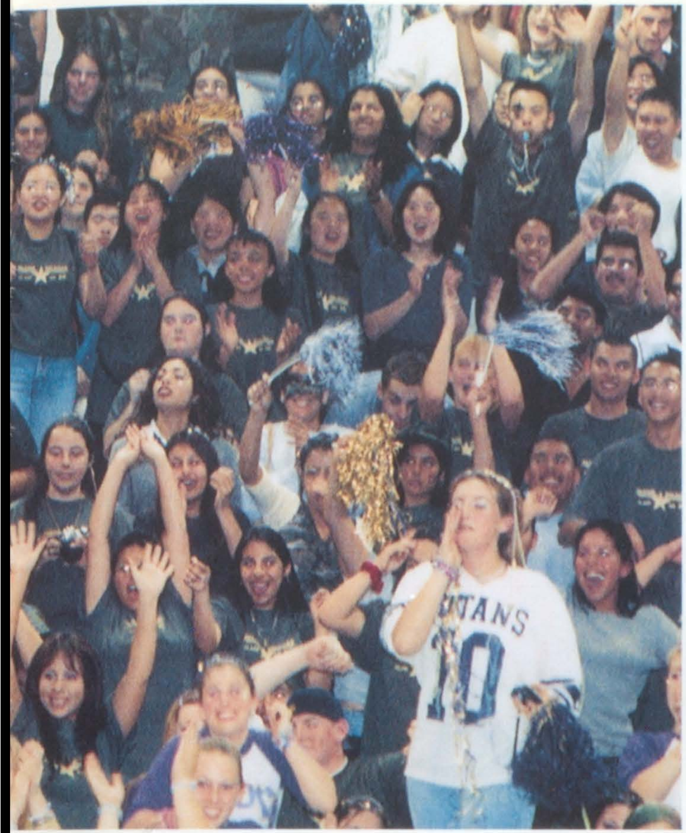


“One...two...Seniors, we rule!” The cheers of the camouflaged senior class echoed through the quad as the class of 2000 prepared to engage in battle against the Irvington military. The feud originated when the jealous Vikings stole our spirit tank and the Titan Troops were called to regain our symbol of school unity. The troops went through grueling training, but in the end, proved to be more than Irvington could handle. The soldiers' determination was rewarded with the recovery of the Titan Troop Tank.

In anticipation of Spirit Week and the Battle of Blacow, the seniors had a lot of work that needed to be accomplished and many expectations to meet. As Scott Siegfried (00) explained, “Since we might be the last senior class at Kennedy, we made sure that we were the best by far.” The class of 2000 came together and as a result of their months of painting the many murals, inventing an original dance, and creating a skit that represented true school spirit, they were presented with first place.

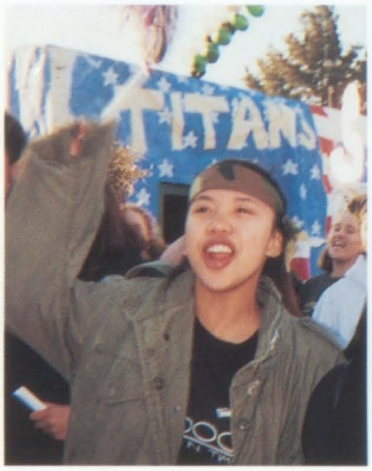
During the Senior Walk-In, Mary Nguyen and Diana Delacruz do their part to make sure all of the classes are covered in Silly String.

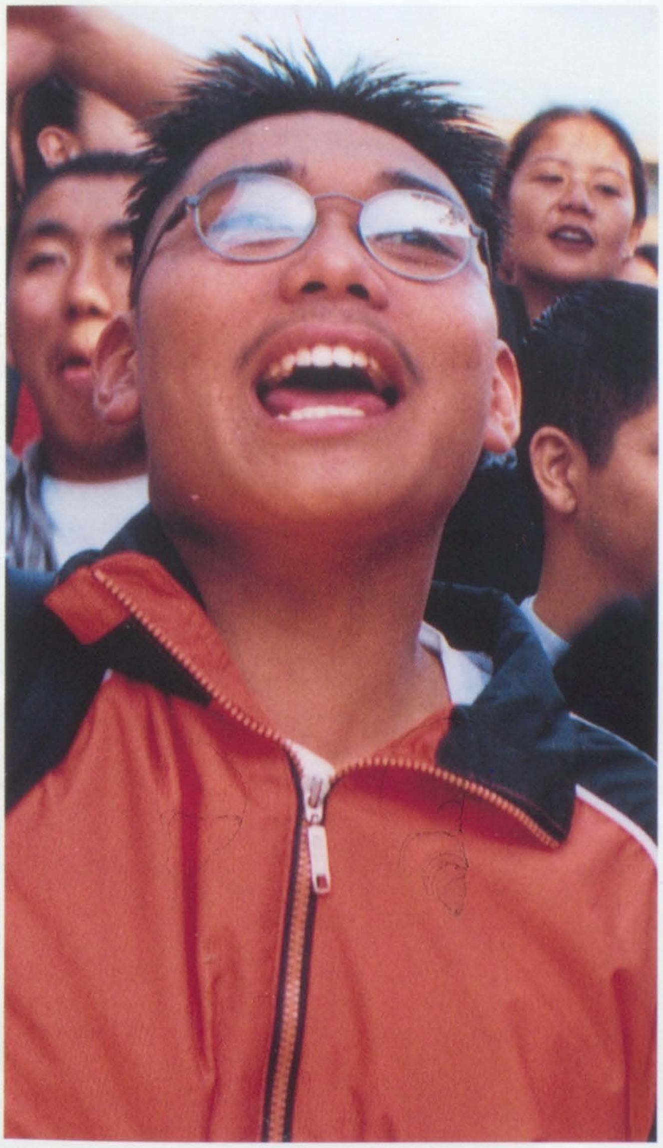
Salina Rodriguez and Janea Ponce compete over who can cheer the loudest for the class of 2000 at the senior's lunchtime rally. “Uh oh, here we go, we're the class of double O!”



The spirited class of seniors unite at the homecoming rally. Together this vivacious group succeeded in winning first place for Spirit Week.

Sheryl Fabian still finds enough energy to cheer for her class, even after staying up all night working on the posters and the dance.





Quiet
GRRRRR!

Nam Dinh, Herbert Asuncion, Arnold Camat, Mark Sotelo, and Jackson Chen spend their time at the overnighter working on the Spirit Tank.

Masoud Hamidi, Sharon Leal, Susan Alvarez, Nikolette Noble, and Shaun Mathews sleep peacefully, but soon they will have to get ready for battle.

Arnold Camat makes sure that everyone knows he's a senior and proud of it by cheering as loudly as possible.

Class of 2001 make their throats ache by chanting 1-2-3 Junior Victory! This group of Juniors continue screaming in hopes of winning Spirit Week.

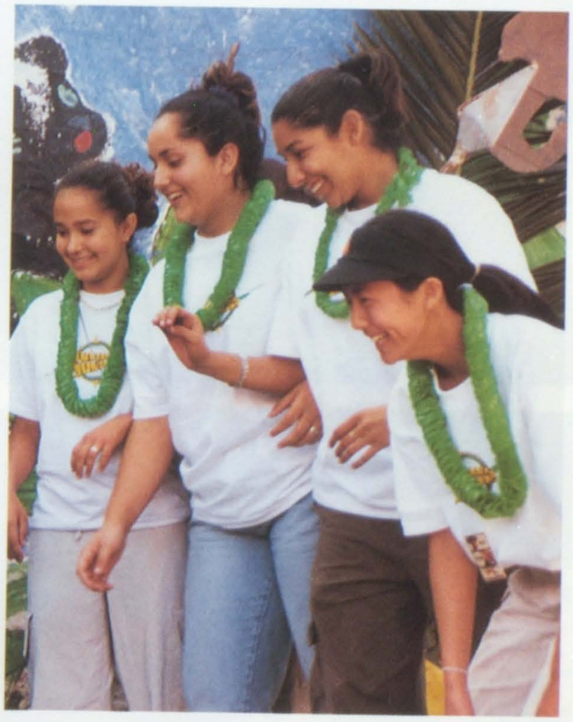
Keri Elson, April Dauth, and Stephanie Peterman express their school spirit by coming to school in 80's clothing on decade day.

Natalie Lyman, Carolina Nava, and Azalea Castro enjoy cheering their class on. These three lead their class to show the entire student body their school pride.

Andrew Palma calculates the location of where he, Janis Vieto, and Felicia Tan are, because they had just been left to crash after the Irvington pilot dove out of the plane. What could possibly happen next?

Indiana Juniors

Imagine overcoming the most death-defying adventure with Indiana Jones. Kennedy and Irvington were both in search of the lost treasure. Kennedy got on a flight to try and find the lost treasure, when all of a sudden the Irvington pilot dropped out of the plane and left them to crash. Ironically, this brought the Juniors to Indiana Jones, and closer to the lost treasure. Unfortunately the Juniors were mistaken for the evil Irvington crusaders, and were attacked by the Jungle's Natives. When the natives realized their mistake, they helped the Juniors find the lost treasure by giving them a map to lead them to their goal. The Kennedy heroes were on their way to find the lost treasure, when Irvington suddenly wrapped Indiana Jones with a snake! At that point everyone was thinking, "Are they ever going to be able to find the lost treasure?" The brave Kennedy Juniors unraveled the snake from Indiana Jones, and joined themselves together to defeat their Irvington rivals. The Kennedy Juniors found the lost treasure and were able to unlock the pride and spirit of their school! The determination and spirit of the juniors, made their Spirit Week a memorable one. Shela Amin (01) had this to say about Spirit Week, "The best part of the school year is Spirit Week, because we worked hard and had fun at the same time." All of the junior's hard work and spirit won them third place in the competition of Spirit Week.

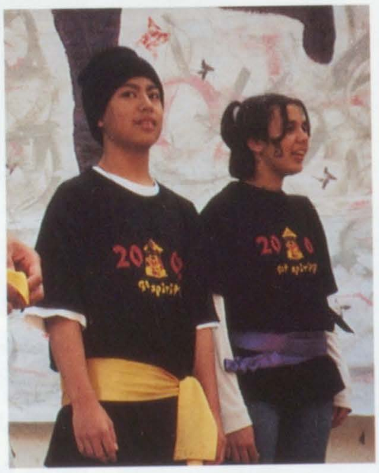


Janis Vieto, Cristina Hernandez, Aurora Munoz, and Felicia Tan look on as their courageous leader, Indiana Jones, is being attacked by their Irvington rivals.

Native, Rea Laccay, shows off her dance moves while attempting to try and capture Indiana Jones and the Kennedy crusaders, because she believes they are Irvington.

Go Connie, defeat the evil Irvingtons! Sophomore ninja, Connie Cavallas, warms up her fighting skills before she kicks Irvington's butt to get back their treasured heart stones.

"1, 2, 3, 4 we are Sophomores!!!" the Sophomores cheer at the top of their lungs to show their spirit during the lunch rally. Full of joy, the class of 2002 give it all they've got.



Ninja Andrew Camaisa, fighting to save our school against Irvington, looks at the crowd for support. "We waited until last minute, but we pulled it off at the end," he said.

Wake up sleepyhead! Mark Cruzada, tired from working hard all night, takes a quick nap.

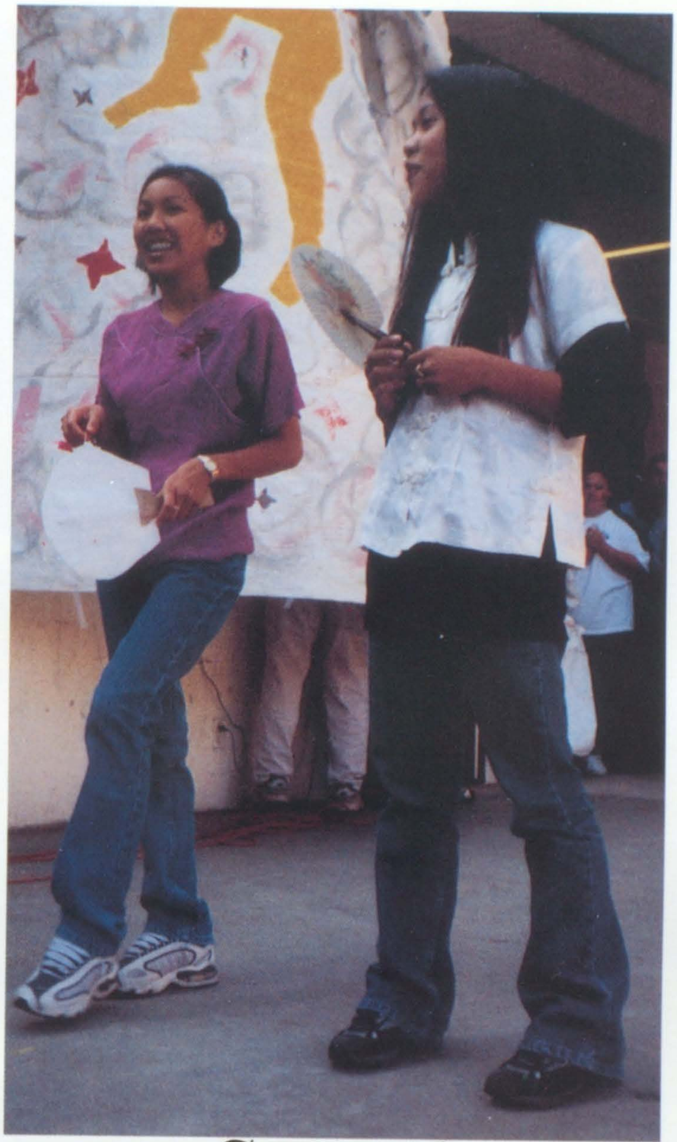
got spirit?



The wise women, Joyce Roldan and Jillian Ayran, assign the ninjas their duty to gain the heart stones back from the Irvingtons.

Shake your booty! Irvington, our enemies, do their special shuffle to show that they have more spirit than our school.

Sophomore Dynasty

Imagine having the powers of a ruler being passed down to you. You have the full responsibility of maintaining a well-organized group, and making sure nothing fails. The superiority has been passed down to a hard-working group known as the Sophomore Dynasty. "I thought our class did a good job, and I'm very proud that our hard work paid off, " said Khaing Sabe (02). The powers of the Sophomore Dynasty are revealed when three wise women present heart-shaped stones that hold within them the memories of our school. The Sophomore Dynasty's obligation is to return the heart stones that were stolen by the evil bad guys from Irvington before midnight.

The Sophomore ninjas go after the robbers who stole the heart stones, and do a special dance to show them what they've got. Their rivals, Irvington, are distracted by the overpowering spirit that the Sophomore Dynasty have when they march in wearing our school colors. The ninjas rush back to school with their treasures, so they can save the memories of our school. When asked how she felt about Spirit Week, President Jackie Shibata (02) replied, "The preperations for Spirit Week were stressful, yet it payed off in the end. Spirit Week itself was fun." The Sophomore Dynasty, with their powerful strengths to conquer, saved the day by defeating their enemies once and for all.

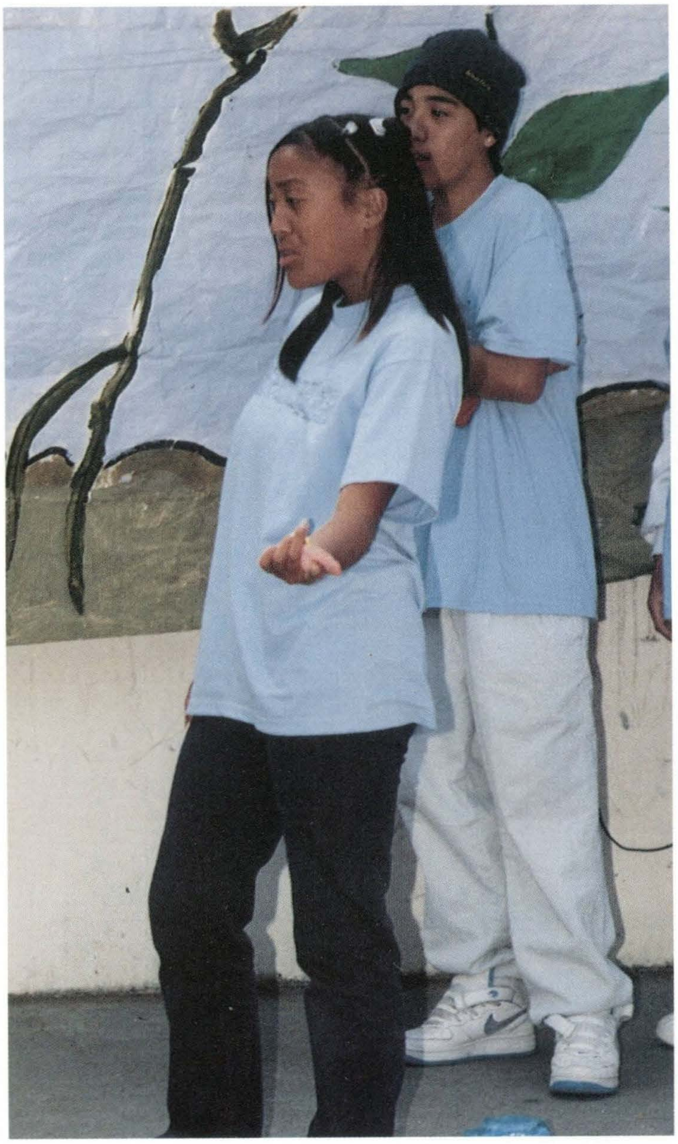
As Michelle Fernandez defends the Titans' honor against the evil Irvins, her fellow Freshman back her up and cheer her on.

"Spirit Week's really fun! I think that they should have more spirit weeks even though it's hecka tiring. I think everyone should get involved nest year!" Genna Panoringan exclaimed.



Under the Sea...

"Freshmen are better, better than ever, wait and you'll see!" chanted the cheerful little Freshmen. In the depths of the Pacific Ocean, existed a civilization superior to the rest, the Freshman Titans. Their "Titan Spirit," which was contained in their Freshman spirit bracelets, was the most important aspect of their lives. Their loathsome neighbors, the vicious Irvins of the murky Irvington zone, were spiritless beings full of jealousy. They hatched a plan to steal all of their spirit because they wanted the Titans to be miserable.

Queen Urva's evil henchmen held the Titan king hostage for their Titan spirit bracelets. Once the Freshmen Titans had come to the conclusion that their Titan Spirit was deep within themselves all along, Urva and her henchmen had nothing left to steal. Frustrated in rage, the Irvins stormed back to their own zone.

"Spirit Week was fun, but I'm glad it's over because everyone was stressing out. Freshman did good!" officer Alyson Noble (03) exclaimed. Spirit Week was something fresh and new for the newcomers of mighty JFK. Hard work and creative minds pulled this class together to make a splash for their first year in high school. "I thought we did pretty good, considering this was our first time. Next year we'll take it from the Seniors," Wayne Garrido (03) said. The class of 2003 certainly made a splash with their fantastic unity, making it in 3rd place!

"Freshmen! '03! Freshmen! '03!" echoed through Kennedy's large gym. Full of spirit and pride, the Freshmen Titans make a big splash with "Freshmen Under the Sea," allowing them to win third place!

Josh Baker leads the Titans in a yelling fiasco. Even though Urva's evil henchmen still took their spirit bracelets, he didn't want to give up without a fight.

"Spirit Week's pretty tight. We never had these activities in Junior High," Josh Chow said after the Freshmen skit was over.

"1-2-3-4-5 Freshmen come alive!!" The Freshmen fishies chant in their very first year of highschool. Spirit and smiles overcome them as they scream at the top of their lungs

Cara Cuison shifts her attention during the Freshmen rally. The Freshmen President looks to aid her fellow Freshmen in attempt to make the skit perfect.

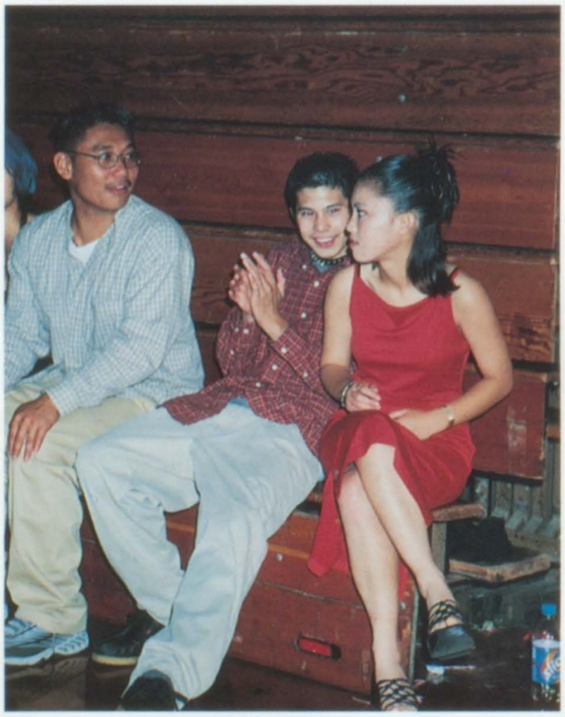
Waiting For Tonight

The screams of joy and the whizzing of silly string engulfed the gym on the last day of Spirit Week. The proud Senior Soldiers marched valiantly on to a first place victory. The Sophomore Dynasty's fantastic effort placed them in a terrific second place. The adventurous Indiana Juniors and their sister class, 2003 Under the Sea, tied for third. The same night, the four classes united for a long anticipated night of fun and dancing. A chatter echoed in the gym as people anxiously awaited the entrance of the Mr. Titan Court. "The dance was great, there were a lot of people there, and everyone was dressed nicely. It was a great evening to be with your friends and have a good time," said Mr. Titan, Daniel Maxfield. The Varsity football game on Saturday ended Homecoming with an explosive, exciting conclusion. The JFK Titans triumphed over the Irvington Vikings during the very last few seconds of the game by a nail-biting one-point lead of 42-41. Current students as well as JFK Alumni made this game the most attended and exciting game this year.



What do you do when you're not dancing? Arnold Camat chats with Tina Montemayor and Brian Rogers on the outskirts of the gym floor. Mischievious looks on Brian makes one wonder if he's up to something.

Who needs shoes to have a good time? Amy Cantrell takes a break from dancing to rest her feet on the bench. A long night of dancing would put blisters on anyone's feet.

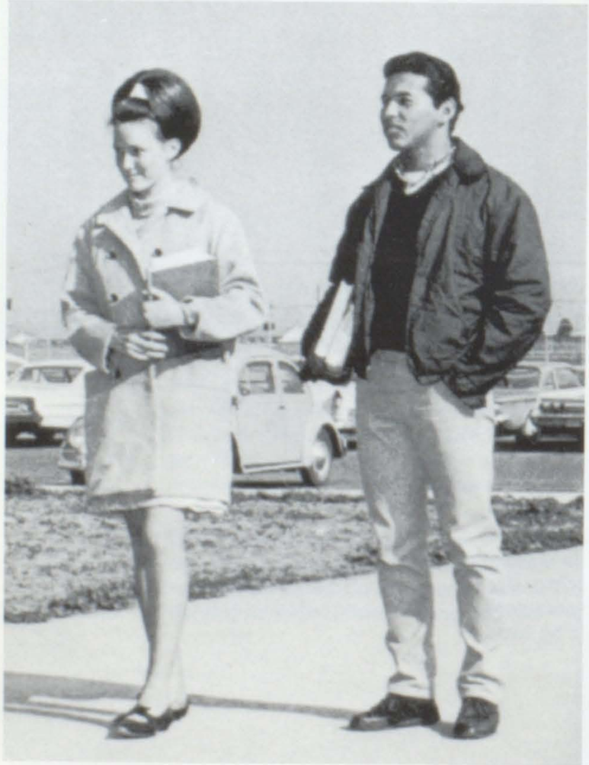
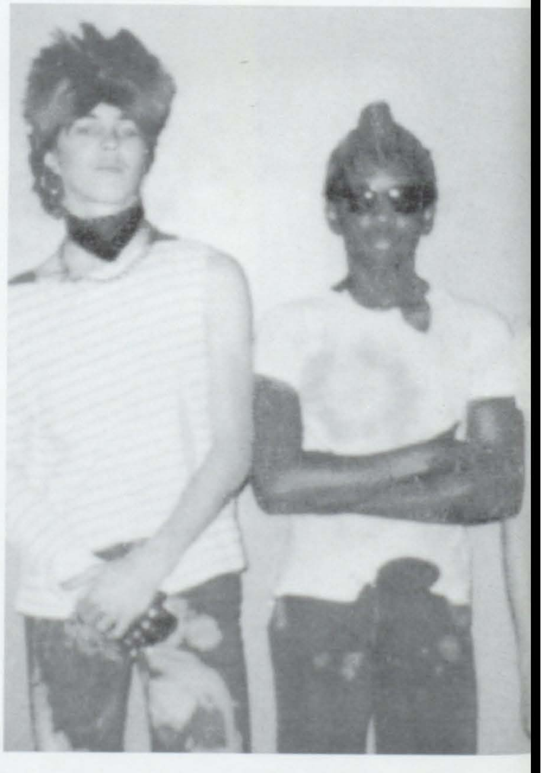
Styles Through the Decades

Penny loafers, bellbottoms, hot pink shirts, and baggy pants were all a part of the fashionable clothes throughout the years at our school. People of the 60's were more conservative. They just wore pants, button shirts, and any old pair of shoes. Today's people are picky on "who" they wear, meaning Ralph Lauren, Armani, Mossimo, Gap, Nike, and Quicksilver. People are worried about looking great rather than feeling good. Arann Capri (00) said, "I think all people are concerned with looking cute rather than comfortable and I think the whole fashion thing is silly." The 70's was a disco era when people were more radical and wore what they felt like wearing. The 80's was America's obsession with the Miami Vice theme of white suits and hot pink t-shirts. Anthony Marks (00) said, "I really don't think that people should wear what other people wear to be cool, it makes me angry. People should not be afraid to wear what they like, it represents the kind of person they are." Throughout the four decades the out school has been open, the fashions have undergone major facelifts, and will continue to as long as fads change.

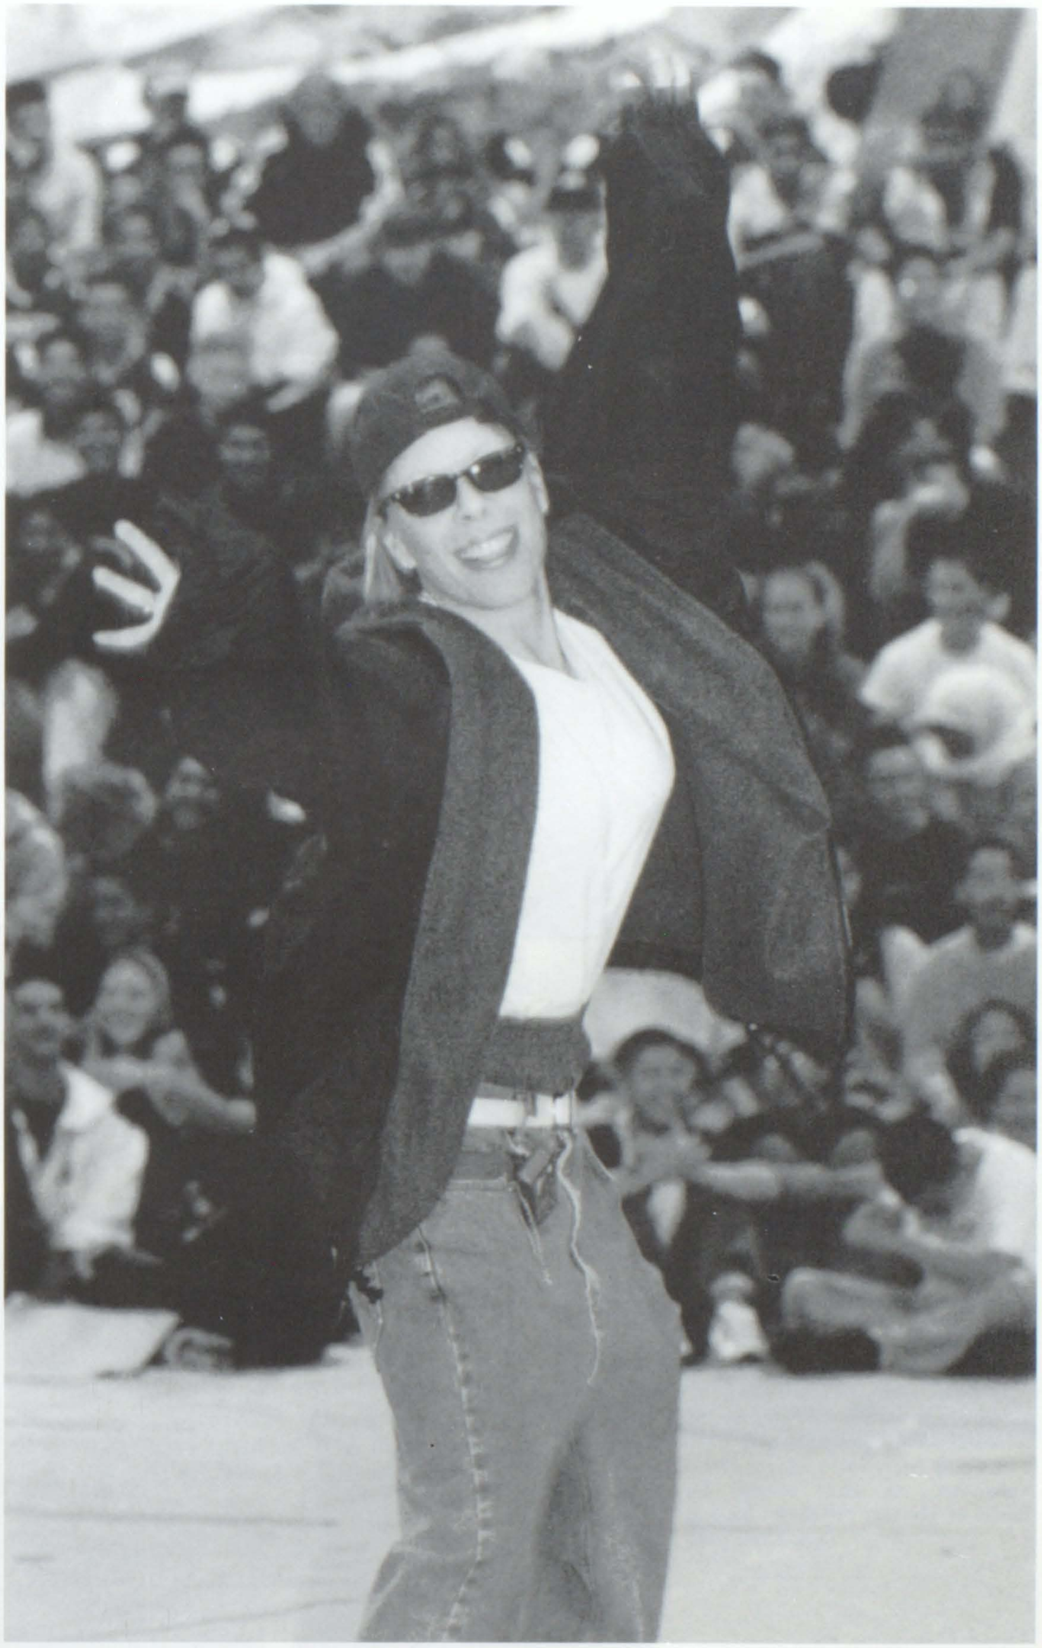


Back in the 1960s, girls were judged on how high their hair could stand. Guys, as you can see, dressed pretty much like they do today, with one exception: they wore their pants more form fitting. Backpacks weren't in fashion, or widely used, as of yet.



By the 1970's, students began to dress less conservatively. The majority of the population of students dressed in many different colors, if they matched or not! A montage of clothes from different sources provided for the unique style that existed in this era. Girls began carrying purses. Guys shaved a lot less frequently.

The jump from the 70's to the 80's shows the biggest and most radical change of all. The punk style ruled the très-cool students. Pants were no longer put on, but instead painted to the bodies of guys and girls alike. Hair was a canvas which the students applied color to. These three gentlemen exemplified the cool fashion of the cool 80's.



The look of the 1990's is, most likely, a lot more pleasant to the eye than were the looks of the past few decades at our school. A spirited Ms. Clark so keenly displays that the students dress themselves in very baggy jeans with boxers (the most widely chosen underwear) showing, big jackets, and of course, their freshest designer sunglasses for indoors. Baseball caps are more popular than ever. One can't help but wonder how Ms. Clark got past Ms. Paratore with her pager hanging out. One thing is for sure... Ms. Clark be grovin'!

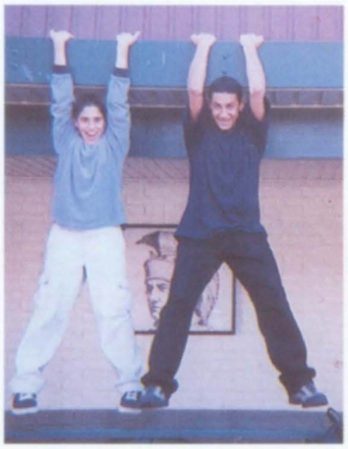
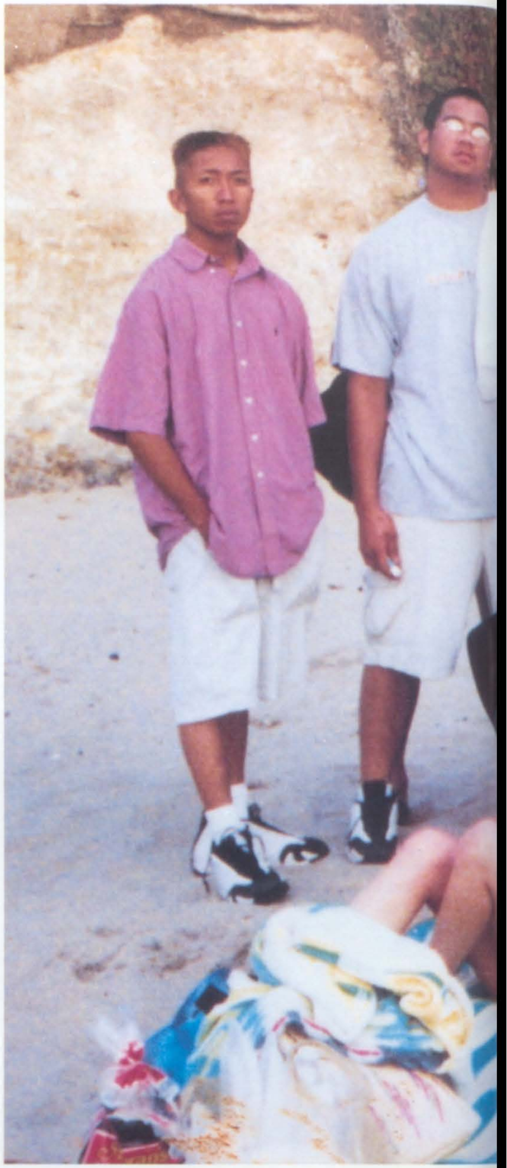
what to do, what to DO?

Does this sound familiar? Most students have the same response. In today's urban culture restaurants have been the locales. For example: the kids of West Beverly High, from "90210", go to the local Peach Pit, The Max was a popular hangout for the students of Bay Side High, from "Saved by the Bell", and Al's Place, from "Happy Days", was the place to be for the kids of Jefferson High. The place to be for Nikolette Noble (00) and her friends is Chili's. "On Friday nights my friends and I are clueless on what to do. Some how we usually end up at Chili's or another local restaurant." While most students can be found at the local eateries, others just need fun to keep them occupied. "My friends and I just hang out or do what ever, like football games or the movies long as we are together we have fun!" explains Ashley Jaehning (02). On the other hand, Jay Ornellas (00) has his night pretty much set: "When I'm not working at Safeway, which is usually never, I find a nice house party to attend." It may be in the bustling city or in the living room of a best friend's house, no matter where the "hangout" is the bottom line is to be in the company of friends.





How about a nice cold milkshake? Senior Andrew Stroman enjoys his milkshake during a relaxing dinner at El Torrito.

Another night at El Torrito Senior Bryan Price ponders on what to order while attending a surprise bithday party for a friend. As he glances at the menu he thinks to himself, "God, I'm looking good tonight."

After a long day of body boarding, picnicking and just having fun, these seniors take a relaxing break at Pleasure Cove in Santa Cruz.

This group of sophomores found their hang out during lunch. Like many others, they made the quad their second home.

Seniors Arnold Camat and Mark Sotelo hangout in Kennedy's quad after school wondering what their weekend will have in store for them.

working hard for the MONEY

Do you actually think that money grows on trees? Does this sound familiar? Money these days is spent so quickly that no matter how much you make, it is still not enough. Managing our money through banking accounts and credit cards make it a whole lot easier to spend and save it, and can prove to our parents that we are becoming responsible young adults. Working can also bring different types of people together and create many memories that we will have for the rest of our lives. Can you remember something that happened to you at work that you wish never did? "One of Baskin Robbins' regular customers is a little demon child who persistently calls me 'hey lady' and always comes behind the counter and plays with the spoons," said Danielle Hoencke (00) with anger in her eyes. Some people actually look forward to going to work after school. " I love the caffeine and the people I work with! The atmosphere is relaxing and the pay is VERY good...plus tips!" stated Sharon Leal (00) with a huge smile. Being able to manage working, studying, and putting aside personal time is a challenge, but works out in the end.

whatever tickles YOUR pickle

The quiet girl who sits in front of you in math may seem like just another ordinary student, but you never know what she might be doing in her spare time. An array of hobbies accompanies the diverse student body at Kennedy. Now a hobby is not simply going to the mall with your pals or hanging out at Jamba Juice faithfully every Friday; it is a passion that is intertwined with your character. "My dad always treated me like the son he never had, so when I was young I adopted his interest in cars and I have been collecting model cars since then," Linda Phavanant (00) shared. Hobbies can also be an outlet for expression. "I like to paint because it's a way I feel I can express myself," said Kristin Hammond (02). A special interest can soon develop into a time consuming hobby. For Aldo Difide (02), practicing and perfecting his break dancing moves is an ideal way to pass time. "I like to break dance, it's another way to express hip hop culture," Difide (02) commented. From skateboarding to writing poetry, no matter what your hobby it is how you like to spend your free time, and that is all that matters.

The triple threat of Mark Ruiz's (00) '91 Civic hatchback, Raymond Alfonso's (00) '99 Eclipse, and Nam Dinh's (00) '89 Corolla is a force to be reckoned with. The three are part of what they like to call low budget racers.

Jason Montgomery (00) kicks it on his Camaro Z28 while steadily counting his cash flow. Even though the Z28 is a domestic automatic, it still packs some heat under the hood.

Dee Delacruz (00) shows that girls can still be girls even though they drive a stick-shift TURBO Eclipse. Dee laughs while she is outside her car, but when she gets behind the wheel, she is still actually pretty much the same.

not your everyday CAR

The most useful tool in ones high school life is not a backpack, binder, or a pencil. Ask the students at John F. Kennedy what was important to them and they will say their cars. A student's car is intertwined with their life. Cars are needed to get them to school, work, and to other social events. Freshmen Ryan Lumidao (03) stated, "I wish I had a car like my older cousin, Arnold." Arnold drives his 1991 Honda Civic to and from school and to other places because he loves the way it gets him there. For some students their cars are not just only a form of transportation, but an accessory. "Anyone can have a plain old Civic. That's why you have to dress it up and make it look better than everyone else's," said Mark Ruiz (00) standing next to his Civic accented with a body kit and rims. Fixing up one's car seemed to be a growing trend at Kennedy. Students turned their slow family cars into pocket rockets, and their daily driven everyday vehicle into show winners. A good example of this transformation is Alex Dinh's (02) brother, Nam and his 1989 Toyota Corolla. A simple hand-me-down from his aunt was turned into a car that not only lit up Kennedy's parking lot, but also made itself heard. Alex commented on the actions of his brother saying, "To my brother and his friends, cars are not just cars, they are extensions of oneself."

Catherine (03), Rebecca (01), Amanda (00), and Stephanie Gentrup (03) know that having so many siblings at the same school can be great, but not always. One of the biggest disadvantages is that if anything happens at school, their parents are bound to find out about it from one of them.

"I love having my little sister, Tannie with me...isn't it obvious?" said Kathy Shaeffer (00) about her sister Tanya (02). They exchange a hug in the hallway between classes as they prove that it IS possible for siblings to get along.

"We don't talk very much at school, but since he's already had all the teachers I have, my classes are easier or harder, depending on wether they liked my brother or not. In general, it's pretty cool having an older brother here, paving the way." -Jackie Shibata (02) & Matt Shibata (01)

as long as we've got EACH OTHER

Whether we view our family members as some of our best friends, or think that time apart is definitely necessary, many students have no choice but to come to school with a relative. This special relationship was not cherished by some at the beginning of the year, as younger siblings were often described as annoying and immature, while the older relatives could be summed up as overprotective ant authoritative. As the year progressed, however, most students began to realize the benefits to having someone there who knows oneself better than anyone else, the result of spending so much time together, willingly or forcibly. pictured. We realized that these people will be in our lives forever, and as we experienced the triumphs and trials of high school together, those family ties formed a bond that cannot be broken.

"I'm glad I was able to spend my last year of high school with my little bro. I love that little guy [brother, Michael (03)]," said Laura Leon (00).

Haw Tan (00) and Phillip Alvarado (01) share a bonding moment as their younger brothers Hann Tan (00) and Americ Alvarado (01) act more mature. These guys have learned that having a twin can have some advantages, "double the pleasure, double the fun."

the Legend; MILLENNIUM edition

Thirty-six years ago, our school opened, and "The Legend" was published for the first time. As the premier edition, the book was not unlike later editions that would follow it. It had the same sections, the same people, doing the same annual activities. The characteristic that made the first edition so special was that it was the original, just as this book currently is itself special because it is the final edition of the first Millennium.

So what did it take to make this yearbook? Well dedication was definitely a needed trait. The yearbook staff contributed numerous amounts of hours during and outside of school, all in effort of completing their layouts before deadline. They also went through countless compromises into what would go into the book. The compromises were not easy, and it definitely did not go very smoothly. Our chief editor, Rachel Young (00) says, "Producing a yearbook is frustrating, stressful and time consuming, but it is all worth it in the end." This is true, because in the end we can look back, reminisce at our year at this school, remember the faces of the boundless students and teachers, and glimpse at how days were at the beginning of the new millennium.

As our school year came to an end, four decades of alumni had traversed our halls, and thirty-six classes had celebrated their final years of high school at Kennedy. Now the thirty-fifth edition of our yearbook was finished, the final words were typed in the computers, and the final pictures were sent into the processing plant. And as this book is currently read, and each picture examined, we can think about the people who made it possible, and know that this staff's goal was to preserve the memories, to record the final achievements, and to showcase the individualistic personalities of the students that attended our school during the final years of the Old Millennium.

What is more fun than looking through old yearbooks? Sarah Jung (00), and Jenny Lime (00) page through an old yearbook to see how life was at Kennedy a decade ago; looking through old yearbooks hold a large amount of importance in finding layout ideas.

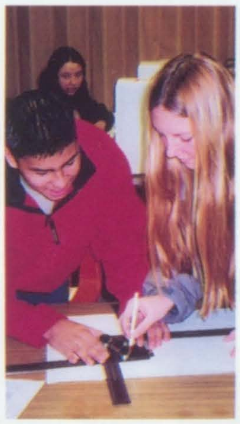
"He did it WELL, not good." Student Life editor Mary Nguyen (00) edits Ancel Ayran's (00) copy, an ever-tiring process. On the other hand, it is a necessary step in the yearbook making process.

There is a lot to do in yearbook. Index Editor Evan Tsai (00) works with his camera, Co-Editor in Chief Charles Anthony Ulloa (00) plans a layout, while Sports Editor Binh Huynh (00) heads toward the sports section staff with more work and ideas.

Designing a yearbook is not as easy as we may think. To come up with the right layout, there needs to be large amounts of forward planning. Essentially, working together and colminate ideas helps to pull the pages together into a uniform project. Here Jessica Delgado (00) is showing Troy Chen (00) her idea for a new layout. Troy finds it "very interesting."

Pose for the camera, you're going to be in the yearbook! Karen Oswald (00) takes a picture while being taken in a picture herself. The ever-important skill in yearbook is contained within the concepts of photography. It is the reason why we bought this book! I mean who wants to read a book when we can look at the pictures!



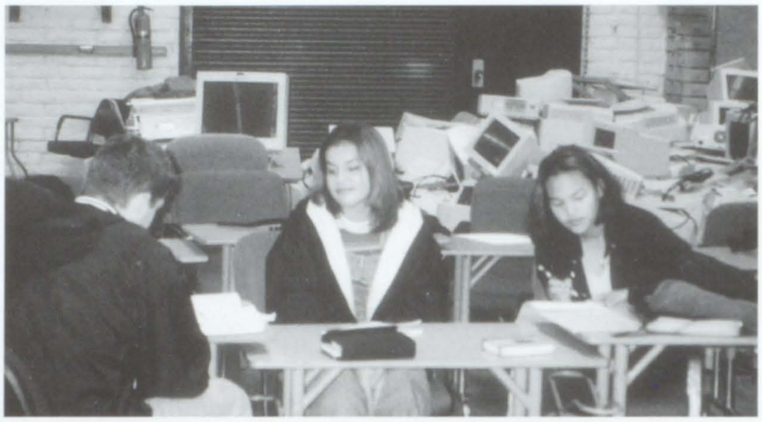
Find the width, and the length, and then reducing and enlarging an image is easy. Of course three arms are required. One arm to hold the cropper still, the other arm to hold the picture itself still, and the third arm to take the grease pen and mark where the picture will be cut off. Unfortunately Roman Suarez (01) only has two arms, so Erin Atkinson (02) helps him crop a picture for the Index Section by lending a third arm.

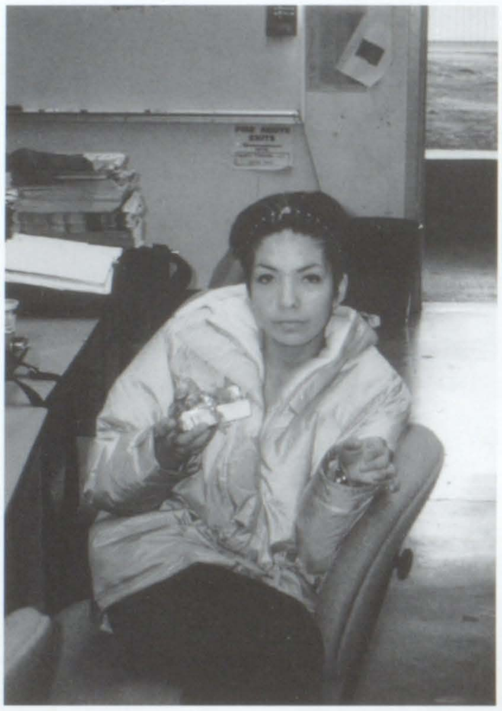
Working together is the quintessential skill in this class. No page is ever made alone. Editors request their staff for layout changes, they also point out errors that could cause problems later. Here Stephanie Chen (00) is looking at Diana Mora's (00) screen, as she explains her reasoning for the contents of her page to her editor.

Ms. [Dee] Clark and Rachel Young (00) edit a layout using Adobe PageMaker. All the layouts and ideas, and all the big problems pass through the chief editor and yearbook teacher. Everything has to be perfect before it can be sent to the publishing factory. Ms. Clark aids in assuaging Rachel's frustration by fixing a problem with one of the layouts.

Take a look! Darrell Price is hard at work jotting some information down. Maybe for an article for the entire school to read.

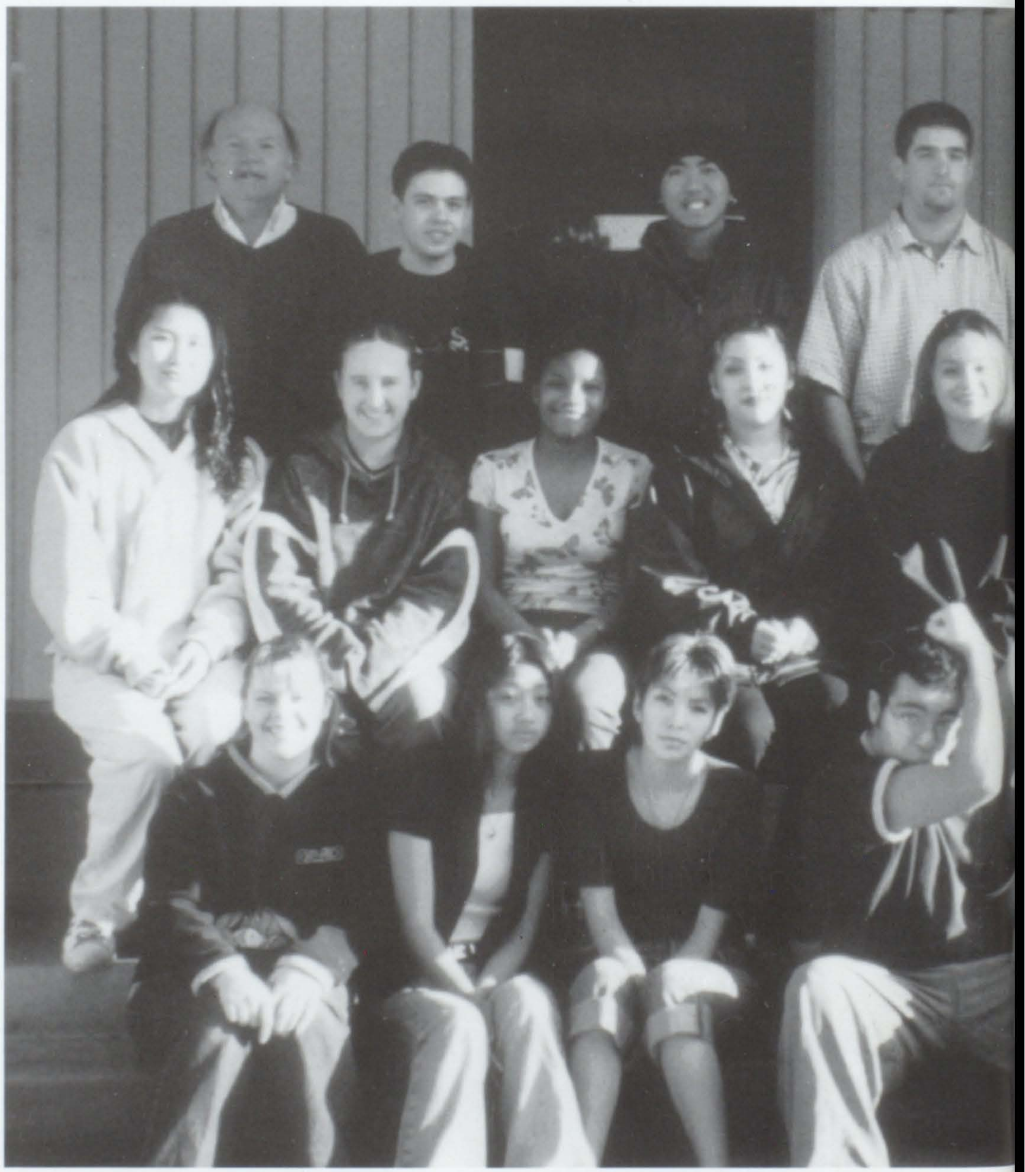
Laura Leon is taking her time thinking of a way to interest the rest of the school with her thoughts. The ambitious, Cara Cuison, is writing out her journallistic views, so not to forget.

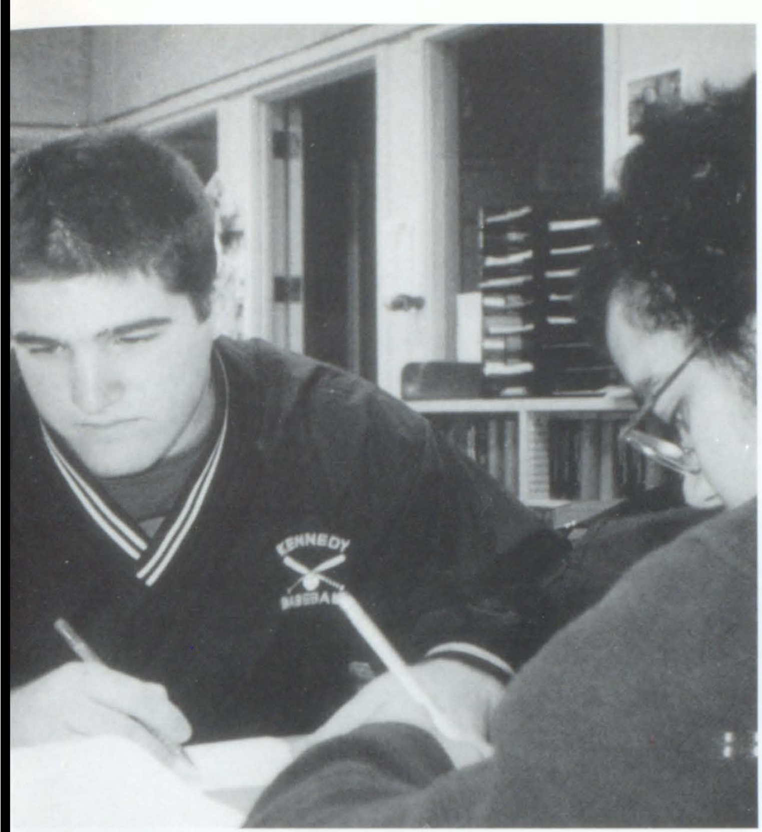


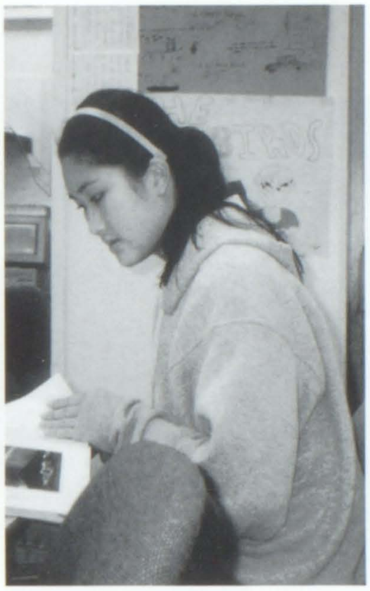


What is this? Jennifer Charge-On-Him slacking off? No, she is just taking a food break from her hectic work schedule. She deserves it.

This ambitious Journalism staff takes time out of their busy schedule, to take a picture. Take a look Kennedy, they are the future Journalists of America.







Who is that? It is Thu Trang Tran reading up on some research, that could be used in an article. What a hard worker!

hot off the PRESS

A new staff with fresh views and strong opinions, opened up a whole new year filled with the persistence to make J.F.K. Today the best it had ever been! Imagine waking up everyday and possessing the ability to express your feelings in a publication the entire school will read. This was the right bestowed upon the Journalism staff. "I feel good about informing the students because I used to be clueless about the news going on in school, and I'm not the only one," Jenni Hummel (00) pointed out. The Journalists contributed in informing their peers of the important and memorable events of the past school year; the game turnouts, the outcome of the school play, and many other school activities. The determination of J.F.K.'s journalists shaped them into taking their time to create articles which would interest their fellow student body. Krisena McIntire (00) said, "I enjoy Journalism because I get to meet new people. I also enjoy creating articles the student body will read." The Journalism staff will always have the satisfaction of knowing that they fulfilled an important responsibility to their school. In all of the Journalists' hard work, they gained the experience and the talent to create the best publications in J.F.K.'s history.

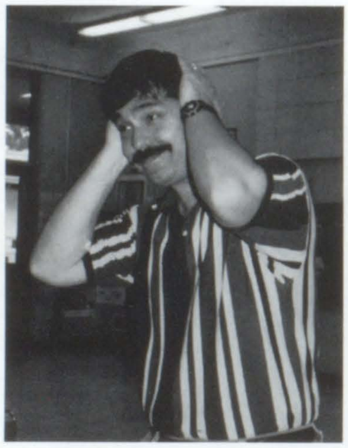
Relax Mr. Sterling! Beginning Choir's accompanist, Sarah Jung (00) has every thing under control as her fingers fly across the piano keys.

The Beginning and Advanced Band may be dropping by for a picture, but you can be sure they will not be dropping their instruments.

Fresh new faces dotted the risers, as the new and old musicians stepped up to the challenge of testing their musical abilities in room 150. "I have always liked singing, and this year my schedule has finally allowed me the opportunity to take Chamber Chorale," said Jaime Young (00). For others the thought of joining choir never crossed their mind, but some how they ended up in Mr. Sterling's class and enjoyed every do, re, mi they sang. "Truthfully I could not find a second period class, but after awhile I really started enjoying the class," reflected Raymond Alfonso (00). The new students also brought with them new ideas and high ambitions. "Many band members are looking forward to attending the Disneyland trip simply because we get to get away from school, but the trip will also offer the band new opprotunities to learn and preform," commented returning band member David Ko (00). Together the Advanced Choir and Band worked hard to raise money to make their Disneyland fantasy come true. The hard work and countless rehearsals helped of all the music classes hit every note right this year.



the halls are alive with the sound of MUSIC

You never see a frown on these faces during third period in Chamber Chorale. Poonam Shah (00), Jennifer King (00), Karin Morch (01), and Felicia Tan (01) crack a smile while they sing "Sun and Moon" from the Broadway musical "Miss Saigon".

Don't lose your place! Kylie Kam (03) plays the xylophone and concentrates hard as she waits for her cue.

None of these smiles look off beat as Beginning Choir and Chamber Chorale stand tall and proud for a group picture. All these happy faces are looking forward to a year of sucess and fun.

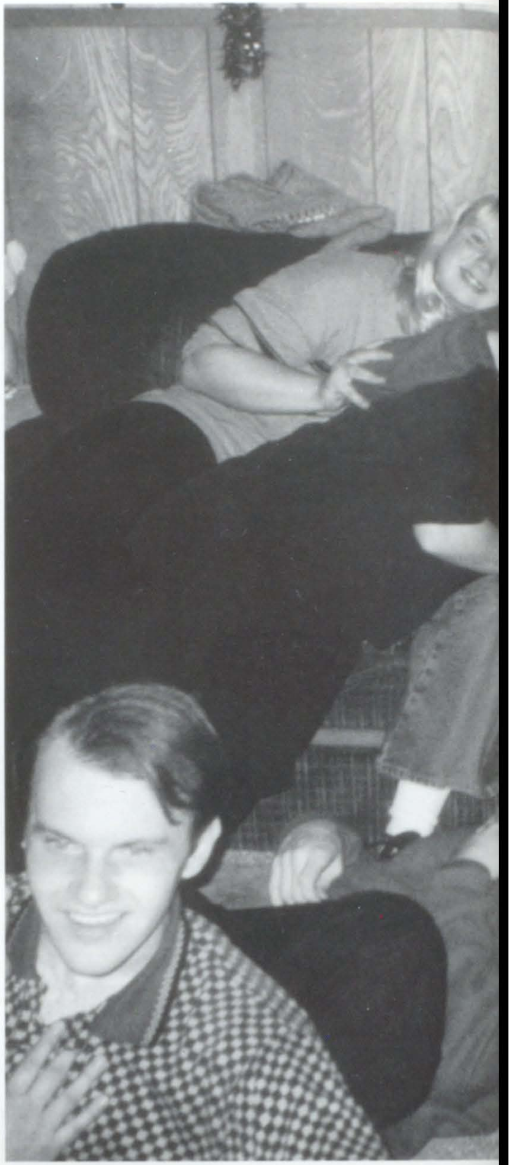
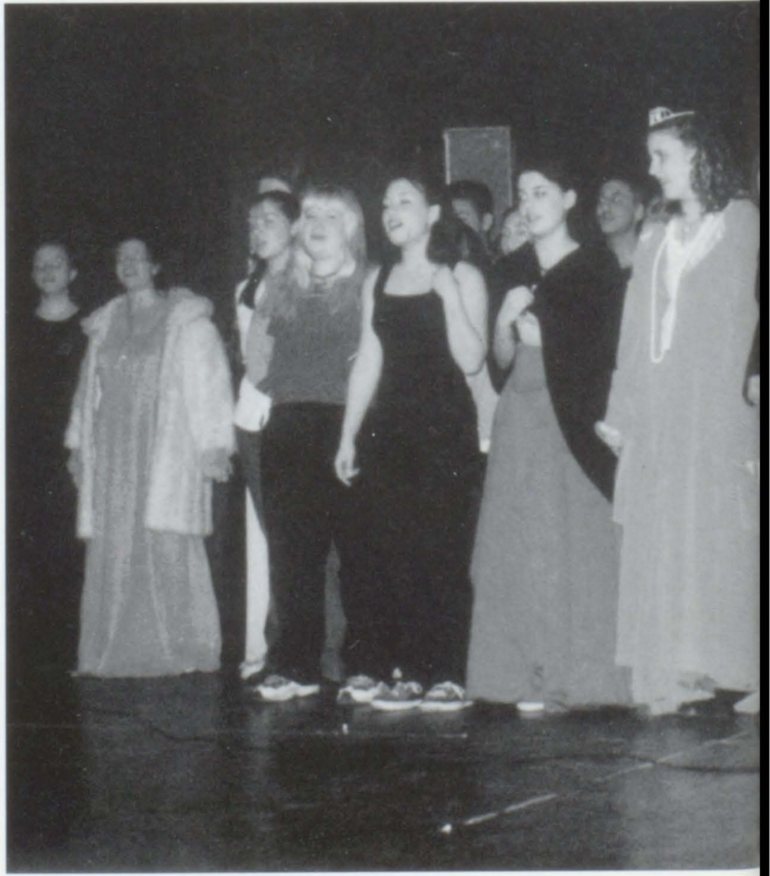
seasons of LOVE

The drama department was glorified this year with a tribute to its 35 year history. The play "Seasons of Love", which was comprised of scenes from "Blithe Spirit," "The Diary of Anne Frank," "The Fantastiks," "Midsummer Night's Dream," "Romeo and Juliet," and "Whose Life Is It Anyway," was a labor of love for the members of the Thespian Society. Ms. Joan Zymjatis, the former drama teacher, and alumni Serenity Mlay dedicated their free time to direct the six scenes, since we did not have a drama teacher this year. Much frustration and confusion arose from the separate directors, separate scenes, and double (even triple!) casting, which created rehearsal conflicts. "It was really confusing because sometimes we didn't know which day to come for which scene," said actor Andrew Strommen (00). But, the members of the Thespian Society triumphed. Said technician Joshua Hackney (02), "This is the first year I helped with a drama production, and I couldn't have picked a better year to get involved. I though that the play was funny and entertaining." The cast ended the show with an uplifting rendition of "Seasons of Love," the hit song from the Broadway musical "Rent," arranged by music teacher Mr. Robert Sterling. The show was a success, proving our school's pride and talent will never go unnoticed by the community.



"Seasons of LOOOOOOOOOOOOVE!" The thespians, accompanied by the Chamber Chorale, belt out "Seasons of Love." They proved that our drama students can do more than just act... they got skills!



"Hold me, thrill me, kiss me!" Jessica Dolimont (01) shares a stolen embrace with Charles Anthony (00) in a scene from "The Fantastiks." They play Louisa and Matt, a young couple sharing a teenage puppy love, similar to that of Romeo and Juliet, except without the tragedy.

Say California Cheese! The cast and crew take a moment to dog-pile at the cast party on closing night. You would think that they had their fill of time in front of cameras by now!

You go girl! Carmen de Avila (01) puts partner Ian Caulkins (01) in his place in a scene from "Blithe Spirit." What you fail to realize, Ian, is that Carmen has crippled more people than Polio!

Alan Condell (00) and Jessica Dolimont (01) add a serious, dramatic moment to the production in a scene from "Whose Life Is It Anyway." Alan plays a young sculpter named Ken whose career was cut short by a tragic car accident that left him quadriplegic. Jessica potrayed his social worker Mrs. Boyle.

hooking it up with a little LOVE

Picture this…it is a holiday… you are living on the streets with nothing to fall back on. Eating leftovers from other people's scraps is not an ideal future for anyone, but there are many people who live this life. Every year, students from all around donate to the less fortunate by giving their time, collecting cans, contributing money, clothes, toys, and other essential needs. When asked, Jamie Rojo (02) said, "If I 'm not doing so well in the future, I would want someone to help me out, too. Plus it makes me feel good inside knowing that I can help someone out." Teachers partake in the season of giving by generously giving extra credit points to students who participate. One reason for their generosity may be due to the coveted title, "King Can." The teacher with the most donations wins not only the title "King Can," but also pride. According to Mr. Patton, "I feel it's a real good cause, to help people less fortunate than us." Ever since the birth of the competition about twenty years ago, Mr. Patton has won every year. The majority of the goods were bought by students with the money they raised throughout the competition. Many students donated their lunch and free time to selling food and candy in an effort to help those in need. While others trekked around their neighborhoods going door to door appealing to the spirit of giving and collecting donations. Even though it was costly, students were able to donate approximately 25,000 goods to the Salvation Army this year.

A compassionate student body that lacked nothing in diversity led to a wide variety of clubs in which to participate. "It is always a new and fun experience to get involved," said Jaime Young (00). From clubs that encouraged us to learn about different cultures, to clubs that provided the opportunity to get involved in the community, there was something for everyone. "As a leader I get a lot of experience in problem solving and leadership; as a member, I get friends and fun activities," said Ahmed Erakat (02), who proved that there was more to clubs than just getting something to add on a college transcript. "The things that clubs do bring together individuals with different interests, hearts, and ideas, which in turn, make a difference in their own lives and in the lives of others," said Thu Trang Tran (00). Whether in volunteer work or helping us to achieve our academic goals, the gift of service remained one of the best kept secrets that we possessed.

Striving for Excellence

Hard work and a lot effort of paid off in the long run for the students that participated in the many academic clubs that we offered. The AP Club prepared students for the grueling Advanced Placement tests that were offered in April and May of second semester. These tests concentrated on advanced skills of the given subject. Scoring well on these exams helped eliminate certain required classes in college. "The AP Club helps our students not only study for the AP tests, but calms their fears," said Veena Vanchinathan. The AP Club encouraged preparation for these tests as well as helping students fundraise for these expensive exams.

The California Scholarship Federation provided resources for students looking to be successful in school and the future. "This Club encourages the students to do well in academics, and rewards them by trips," said President Hau Yeung (00). The Club only allowed students whose grades measured up to meet a certain point scale.

Poems and short stories are just a few of the activities of the Creative Writing Club. This handful of dedicated students practice and improve their abilities to express thrmselves on paper. One of the major goals of the Creative Writing Club was to produce a literary magazine featuring the works of many of the students. "Our school has many talented writers and poets, and this club recoginzes them to the community through the Literary Magazine," said Chuck Ulloa. This class benefitted its members not only in their English classes but in their future careers.

Early preparation pays off for those who planned to take AP tests. Kirandeep Kaur (00), studies her English text book for some extra knowledge.

Lunchtime in the Quad is the perfect time to raise money. Ap Club members Rebecca Loy (00) and Veena Vanchinathan (00) spend their free time selling candy grams.

Even CSF Presidents have to eat sometimes. Hau Yeung (00) takes a lunch break before a CSF meeting.

Writing poems and short stories takes a lot of work and dedication. Sveta Parikh (00) uses her lunch period to work on her projects.

Dressed in traditional Chinese attire, Leilani Fernandez (00) and Gillian Fong (00) wait for their club’s chance to show off in the fashion show, performed for the student body.

Seema Aggarwal (00), Poonam Shah (00), and others from IPA seduce the crowd with their hip cultural dance.

The members of the Vietnamese Club are in formation, preparing for their performance in the Multicultural rally.

Hanan Qutub (03) and fellow club members from the Arabic club demonstrate for us how they can get down tonight.

Individual students progress in maturity and wisdom everyday. However, they not only grow as individuals, they grow as a community with their fellow classmates. Everyone has a purpose and a part in contributing to our community. By everyone performing their role, they brought us together to form one. The numerous students that belonged to the multicultural clubs constructed themselves so that they were capable of growing greater and stronger.

Coming together as one creates strength of the individual. It would seem only natural that working together is the perfect solution to make us all stronger, more capable people. The Arabic Club planned to send charity to Saudi Arabia for the poor. To do this, they had to work together and do their part in raising the money. Shereen Mohammad (01) said, "Everyone gets involved and adds their ideas, which makes the club more interesting and fun." The Vietnamese Club also follows the ideal of coming together to make the best decisions. "We're like a family. We treat everyone equally and make compromises. All opinions, proposals, and ideas are appreciated. We are peaceful people and don't like to argue," said Vananh Pham (00).

A few clubs focused on educating others about their culture's history. For the Chinese New Year, the Chinese Student Union visited China Town in San Francisco to see their culture first-hand. The Black Student Union emphasized learning black history and the major influences that black people had in history. Sparkles Sibley (02) exclaimed, "The students involved in BSU are positive and hopeful. They're stuck on being original and don't wish to repeat or do things that have already been done. Our club, though a Black Student Union, does not only consist of black students, but we are very diverse." BSU took a field trip to Oakland to see ritual dancers, and they emphasized the idea of understanding the meaning of the dances so as to gain knowledge of their culture.

IPA expressed their culture by learning about it and performing their cultural dances at our school as well as others. A club that specifically desired to give other students the opportunity to obtain the knowledge of their beliefs was the B.A.S.I.C club. "We want others to know God's truth and the love of Jesus that He's put in our hearts. Because we have seen God's work, we feel it's our responsibility to share it with others. We pray people will turn their lives away from destruction," explained Hana Rosenberg (01).

Upon looking at the actions and purposes of our multi-cultural clubs, one would find that the students had good intentions and expressed a great deal of compassion for others and their cultures. They worked well together to create a more unified school.

United We Stand

It was lunchtime, and the halls filled with kids rushing to the food carts, or to their cars to make a trip to Burger King or Taco Bell. Many of the students, however, are members of a club, or several, and used their lunch period to attend club meetings. There were a variety of clubs to particpate in, especially ones that had a multicultural focus. With our diverse population of students, there was a club with which everyone could associate.

Even if you could not personally identify with a certain culture, the clubs made sure that everyone felt welcome. "We are not only an Afghan Club," said Uzma Shoukat (01), "anyone can join. We're very open, there are people in it that are not Afghan. I like this club because it gives me the feeling that I belong to something and it keeps me motivated. " The Islamic Club also showed a similar attitude. "What we do is talk about Islam and try to make people more aware of our religion," explained Malalai Razawi (00). One of the services that the Islamic Club provided for their members was that every year they held group prayer during lunchtime every day for a month for Ramadan, a religious holiday. They also hold group prayers every Friday.

M.E.Ch.A. was also a very popular club. Throughout the year, M.E.Ch.A. held many lunchtime activities that included informational speeches by students and teachers on the history and importance of many Latino holidays and traditions. On September 16th, Mexico's Independence Day, members dressed in traditional attire and performed dances in the Quad.

The Korean Youth Association was another busy club. According to Carolyn Kim (00), "Participating during International Week, discussing fashion shows, and holding various activities throughout the year is what our members are involved with."

Many members of the Filipino Youth Coalition believed that the point of this club "was to find out about other people's culture, because not everyone in our club is Filipino, so we learn about the culture of those who aren't," as Edward Curammeng (01) stated.

This sense of unity that the students of Kennedy so lovingly displayed was something for us to be proud of. Its a part of what we call our "Titan Pride."

Give A Little, Receive A Lot

An old saying goes: The needs of the many outweigh the needs of the few, or one. The feelings evoked in this phrase are those of compassion, empathy, and sacrifice. These emotions were deeply embodied by many Kennedy students. Over the course of the year, many clubs concentrated the majority of their energy into community service. These types of clubs ranged from the Leo Club, which devoted much time to general community service, to Club Earth, which drove to promote recycling and conservation of our Earth. The president of Club Earth, Veronica Rabuy (00), enthused, "Our club is completely dedicated to our planet! This spring, we were able to go on several beach clean-ups. [Club Earth] always welcomes any newcomers with the earth in their minds and hearts." Other such clubs were KCK (Kids Cheering Kids), Crossing the Bridge, and Interact. Student participants of these clubs rolled up their sleeves and sacrificed weekends to create a little change in their community with smiles. Said KCK vice president, Linda Phavanant (00), "I feel that KCK is the most active club at Kennedy. I think that our work with the kids has made a difference and in some ways, made an impact on them." Perspectives differed with the clubs and Ann Nguyen (02) of the Leo Club commented, "The Leo Club is a fun type of club that enables students to interact with the community and help others." No matter the club and no matter the place, Kennedy students were always willing to give a little of their time to provide for the needs of the many. From pancake breakfasts to finger painting with kids, Kennedy students sacrificed time and shared their hearts with the community. The result? A better world to live in.

...Dream Catchers...

With the immense diversity at our school, many people tend to think that because of these differences, teamwork is virtually impossible and friendships are harder to forge. Are they? During the course of the year, students with similar interests banded together with common goals and dreams in mind, and formed clubs based on their interests. Some of these unique clubs were the Japanese Animation Club - a club for "anime" lovers both new and old to catch up on favorite Japanese animation series, and Chess Club - where ingenuity paves the way for excitement, and Friday Night Live - the club designed to give students an alternative to drugs and alcohol while having a party at the same time. Like to argue? Think you are good and can win most of your arguments? Then join the Speech and Debate Club. And the last multifaceted special interest club is the DECA club -- created to encourage students to pursue their goals for their potential future in the world of marketing and business. Why is DECA so special? Maybe Gaby Loera's (01) and Yvette Alvarez's (01) comments shed some light on the topic. "DECA is fun! As first year students, we've been able to experience the fun not only for educational purposes but for our social interests too." Each club reflected the differing interests of the students and each club's members were of a rainbow variety. So what do you get? A beautiful and bold blend of fun and laughter and a chance to chase a dream. Commented club president Chris "Yoshi" Nguyen (00), "The Japanese Animation club is the place to learn about other cultures while having a lot of fun. It's a chance to meet other people who like what you like." Ellie Huang (01) makes no comment as she busily etches away on her work of art. (pictured in center) And then there were the clubs designed to send the brain on a merry-go-round whirl. "It's all strategy - chess is a fun way to put your mind to the ultimate on-your-toes test. In other words, checkmate!" laughed Jennifer King (00), president of the Chess Club. While some students saw these clubs just as a means for having fun, or a way to take up another lunch period, the infinitely deeper reason for becoming club members was to chase an inner dream and maybe catch it in their hearts.

DECA ended the NorCal conference in victory! The team was (l to r) (t to b) Omar Helmand (00), Malik Moore (00), Scott Siegfried (00), Arash Azadan (00), Yvette Alvarez (01), Stephanie Chen (00), Alan Lao (00), Alex Evans (01), and Gaby Loera (01).

More Than Just Meetings...

All of us enjoyed the dances, rallies, intramurals, and lunchtime activities. Our enjoyment, however, was due to the hard work of the A.S.B. officers. They were the ones who sacrificed much of their time and energy to make sure this year included many memorable experiences.

Led by the A.S.B. President Veronica Rabuy (00), the student government assembled during every homeroom to discuss and plan these events. "Weekly A.S.B. meetings always gave members a chance to talk about current events. All of A.S.B. worked with their commissioners and officers to prepare for activities. The meetings presented a chance for comments, new ideas, and input from our advisor, Mr. Webb," said Rabuy. Meetings were not the only place where work was done, however. The officers spent time during lunch and after school to get the job done. Their efforts made every single event memorable. These included Spirit Week, the homecoming and winter rallies as well as all the dances, intramurals, Multi-Cultural Week and student exchanges with other schools in our district.

The A.S.B. officers were the leaders of the school just as much as the workers behind the scenes. They led many events that benefited the whole student body as well as the entire community. Some of these service activities included the blood drives and canned food drive. These community works, as well as the rest of the events during the school year, were a success because of these student officers' dynamic leadership.

"It's a world of laughter, a world of tears; it's a world of hopes and a world of fears." This old song seemed to sum up the students' feelings towards their academic lives. To some, it was a chance to get the most out of their education. Commented Alice Tsai (02), "Academics is a challenge, a test of self-discipline, and progress." However, there were a few Titans who just took it easy. Said David Ko (00), "Academic life? I don't have an academic life!" Regardless of their views on academics, the students were in general agreement of one thing. It was what happened behind closed doors and after school that made each Titan student a success. With teachers who were always willing to help and the variety of courses offered, it was no wonder that the Titans emerged victoriously into the real world.

Historical Words

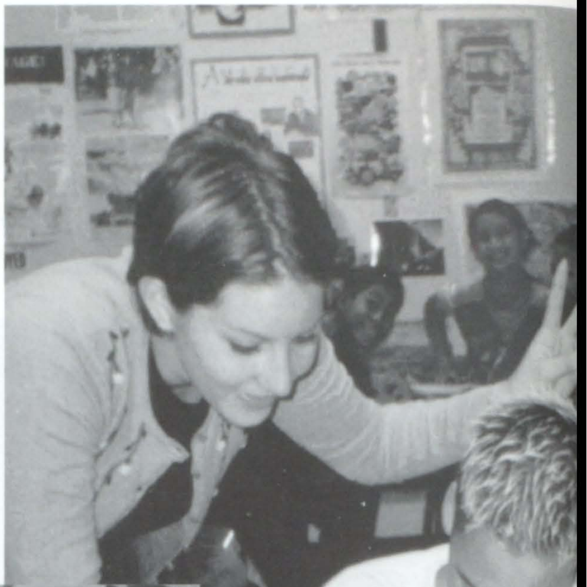
This year we have been told to interpret the mysteries of the muse, to listen to the hypocrisy within history, and to uncover the allusions that have been intertwined into our fiction. Some of us have performed these tasks without any worries, while others have done so with some animosity. So, what makes these subjects interesting to certain people and irritating to others?

Everybody has a reason why they like what they like. Case in point, John Teckemeyer (00) said that he enjoyed his English class. He remembered, "English was the best entertainment that I have encountered throughout all the school year." In parallel, history was just like a long English novel. Tiffany Ng (02) did not enjoy the whole novel, only certain parts; she said, "The best part of history is learning about the scandals that had occurred in the past."

Realistically, we were not born with the skills to read, or the knowledge of the past. However, it has been up to us to discover a niche that would spark an interest in these subjects.

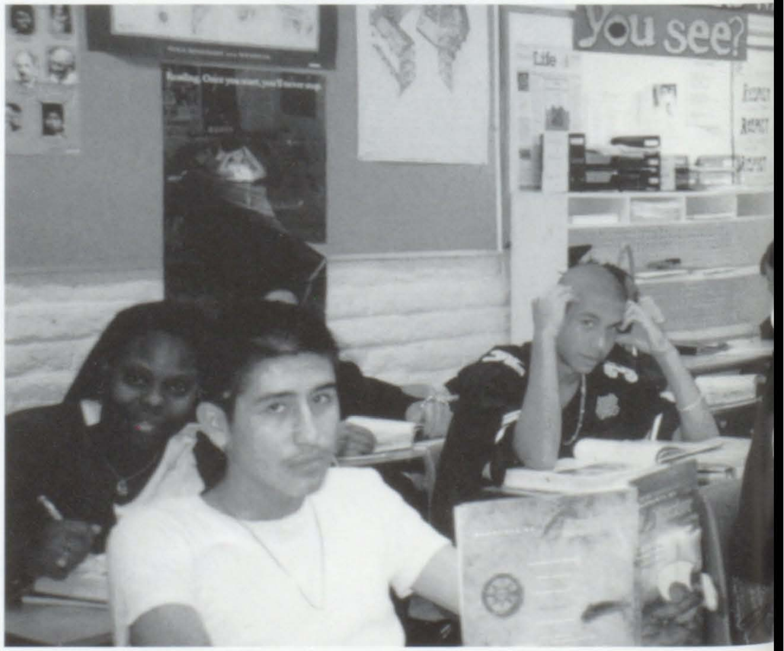


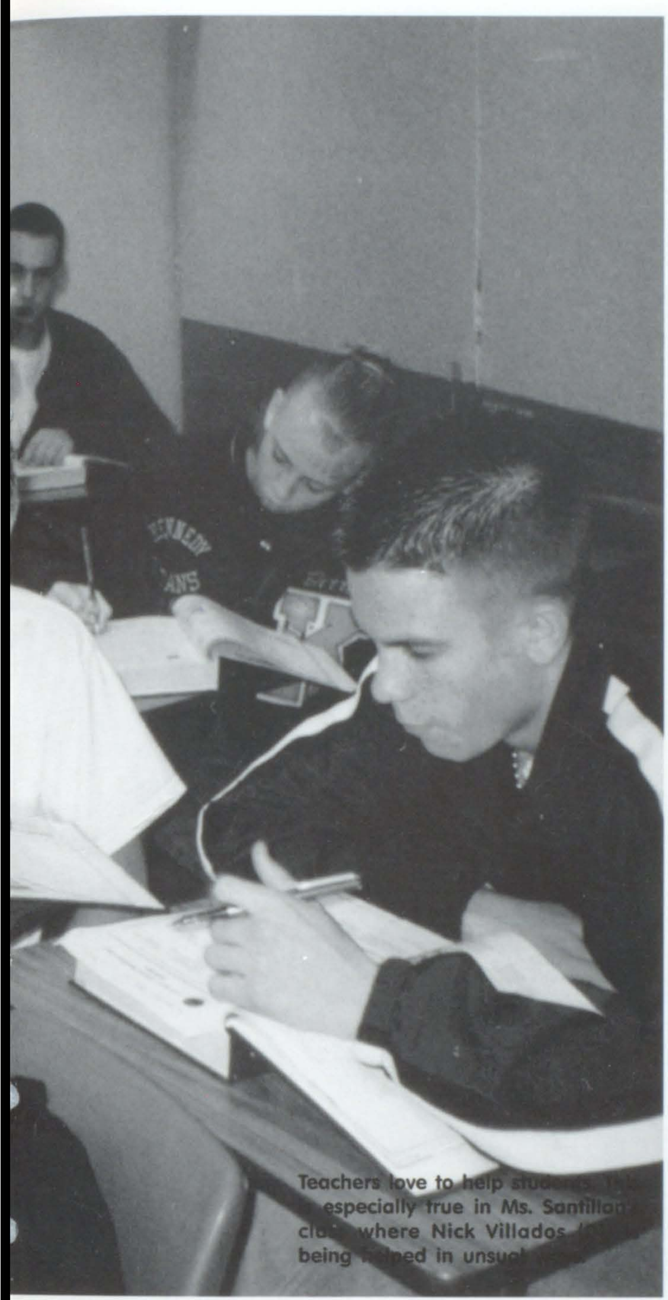
Students are in deep contemplation of the languages. Dorothea Young (00) listens to Madame deSchweinitz lecture about the French language.

"I love English, there's nothing else that lets me express myself in so many ways."-Cara Cuison (03)

"It's interesting to learn about past cultures and see how they compare to ours"
-Kevin Tran (02)

"I like history because I want to be president of the United States."
-Nazim Deen ('00)





Teachers love to help students. This is especially true in Ms. Santillan's class where Nick Villados ([illegible]) is being helped in unsual ways.

Interesting topics captivate some students more than others. Mike Ghali (00) is absorbed in his studies while others head to their next period.

The world of math and science is one of intricate puzzles and startling theories. Because these classes demanded the most attention and patience on the students' behalf, responses concerning these classes were very diverse. "The class [Integrated Math 3] is difficult because you have to use your own mind to figure out how to do the work," said Christopher Lui (01). Classes like Integrated Math 3 and Calculus teased the brain and ran them in circles as they sought the best answer hidden in each problem. In science, students challenged the laws of gravity and time as they explored the theories of a forgotten past. Gillian Fong (00) said that "The physics classes did a time machine project. What made it so neat was that they worked!" Even though these classes caused the most heartache, the rewards were enough to dry the tears and bring a smile of pride on their faces as a brighter future was discovered.

Pathways to the Future

What do you want to be? ..A teacher ..a doctor ..a cook...there are many things that you can be. Many students were able to get a head start on their future through the Regional Occupational Program (R.O.P.). From Auto Body to Computer Graphics Design, these courses prepared students for their future professions. "I'm taking a Computer Graphics Design class, which is really kick back. We are able to design different things and at the same time have some fun," said Shaun Mathews (00). Other students took more of a hands-on course. "Auto Body gives me a chance to learn and get some experience. The only thing I don't like about the class is getting out at 3p.m," said Bryan Gonzales (01). Our students looked a little closer at the opportunities offered in the elective classes. Those included foods, photo, woods, yearbook, and many more. "Woods is a cool to have you are able to make different things," replied Noé Bustamonte (00). No matter what the electives were, students enjoyed the hands on training within the class and emerged with a better scope of their futures.

Now that's an interesting negative. Justin Lutz (01) and Stacey Joe (00) put their heads together to find the perfect picture.

"Hola,¿comó estás?" the students replied as they got ready for class. It is now a demand in the world to know a second language. A Place of Their Own

Where do you study? According to the students, anywhere and everywhere. From school benches to bedrooms, from bathrooms to the work place, and any place in between, as long as it had what they needed. The different places that they studied reflected themselves and their own unique ways. Some students preferred the security of being indoors while others felt the need to be out in the open. "I like to study in my bedroom on my bed because of the privacy and so I can listen to music which helps me concentrate," said Benita Haletky (03). Other people preferred more unusual places, like Yolanda Browne (02). "My favorite place to study is the bathroom, because I can get two things done at once, it's really quiet and peaceful." No matter the difference in study places, at least each student had a place of their own.

Like a tree needing water and time to grow, so too does an athlete need a coach and time to develop. It is not a gift from your mom. It is something that has to be nurtured for many years. Practice makes perfect and with time, hard work will eventually pay off. Talents are visible everyday after school at a Kennedy game. Heart, determination, and desire thrusts athletes forward. Whether it is a lay up, a base hit, an ace, a take, or a backstroke, one has to be willing to give their body to the grueling and time consuming practices. These students/athletes must endure vigorous practices, do their homework, maintain a decent grade point average, and sometimes even go to work. Their determination to succeed under pressure can be seen through their facial expression. Their hidden talents are not what they show at a game, but how they manage time.

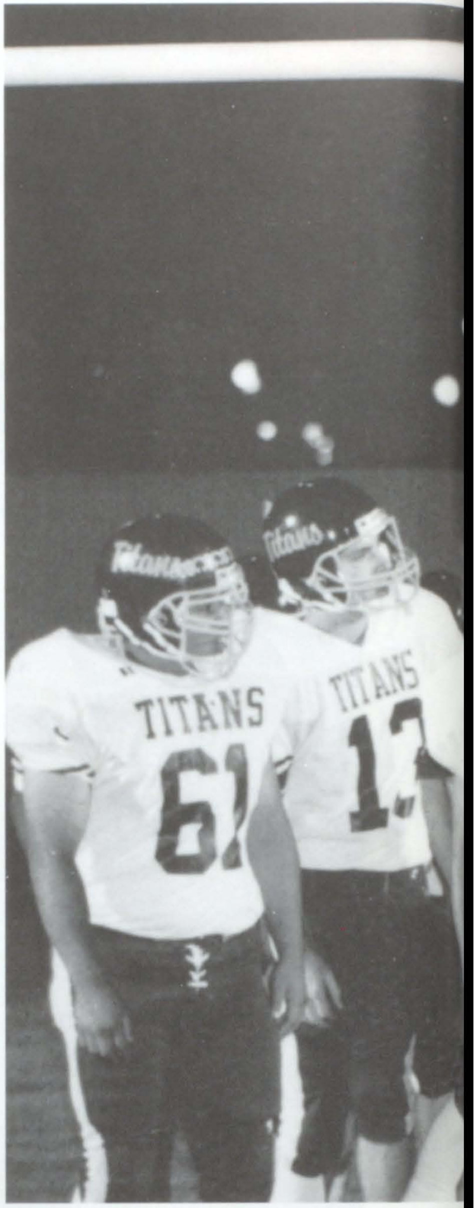
On the Line in '99



As the clock ticked down on the '99 season, the varsity football team worked hard to prove both on and off the field that Titans never give up. The previous disappointing 0-10 season only fueled their fire even more. Tradition is one of the key factors in the development of our football team. Linebacker Darrell Price (00) stated, "Without tradition we would be just another group of individuals and not the team we prove to be." One might have noticed while watching the games that at the same point in every game the entire sideline held up four of their fingers. In doing this, they reminded themselves that it is the last quarter and they must play to their fullest potential.

The team started the season a little shaky but showed no signs of surrender. A season highlight happened against the Washington Huskies when Free Safety Charlie Corbera (01) ran back the opening kickoff for a touchdown creating an early lead against the previous year's undefeated Huskies. Starting Quarterback Omar Helmand (00) of the season, "We could not have gotten any of our yards without the great blocking by the offensive line." The team finished the season strong with a maximum effort put forth by every player.

Omar Helmand looks down the field anxiously awaiting his incredible passes arrival into the hand of the Titan receiver. Helmond had no rush to fear on this pass attempt because of the tremendous blocking from the offensive line.

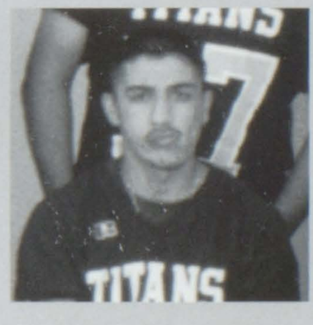
Inspiring Quotes

"When you put on theTitan jersey you represent all those that came before you and all those who will come after."
Coach Mike

"We may not have won the championship but the way I look at it we have gained something much more important than a trophy. We have gained respect and fear from schools who thought us as just an easy win and not as the challenge we truly are. "
Robert Vargas(00)



" In my opinion we have had a great season. The wins might not be there but we have acomplished our main goals we have become a family and we have overcome the past seasons losses."
Omar Helmand (00)

About the season...

Daniel Hogan (02)

"Since we were freshmen, we didn't get a lot of respect. But when we got on the field, we tried our hardest to get some respect."

In the Zone

"A kick in the rear is still a step forward," said frosh coach Russell Pfiester. He believed that criticism, no matter how bad, would make someone improve. This is certainly true with the frosh and JV football squads. One could always have heard coaches yelling at their players during practice. However, all of the reproaches was well worth it for the freshmen, as they ousted their first three opponents. Even though they also lost some games, they promised to be a force not to be reckoned with in upcoming years.

The JV players struggled hard both during the summer and the season to prove that they are a team that can win. Led by captain Chris Mitchell (02), the team strived to be the absolute best they could be. "Even though we lost a lot of games, we fight to the end. We look forward to playing next season," said Mitchell.

Both the JV and frosh squads displayed pride in every game. Despite losses, they aways played with heart. Coach Felix Jamero said one great statement that inspired players always to perform their best. "When I step out on to the field, wearing the purple, white, and gold, I represent the players that came before me, and I represent those who will come after me. Now is my time in history to do what I can to be a champion."

Holding the Key to Spirit

"We're solid gold, we've got the key, we're on our way to victory!" That's just one of the many sounds you'll hear from the amazing Titan cheerleaders. Though small, the squad was full of experience. With two returning Varsity cheerleaders and five girls with past experience they possessed the skill to compete with the best. The talented ladies won the "Superior" and "Excellent" awards at camp and received an invitation to dance at the Australian Invitational. "Camp taught us a lot about team unity and spirit," said Amanda Silva (02) J.V.cheerleader. At the start of the season the ladies looked outstanding! These skilled ladies amazed the crowds with mile high basket-tosses and spectacular flips. Varsity cheerleader, Aimee Bowersmith (00) said, "With only five girls on Varsity and seven on J.V. we are not your typical cheerleading squad, but what we lack in size we make up in heart." With their positive attitudes and their shinning smiles these lovely ladies will always hold the key to spirit!

In a League of their own

With revitalized spirit, the girls' tennis team marched out to the courts with the intent to win as a team. After a challenging year, the girl's tennis team had come back with renewed hopes. With the addition of a few new players, this team promised to be a force not to be reckoned with. 2nd year head coach Edward Stark had been pushing his team to the limit. Coach Stark, with more experience under his belt, guided his team to many victories. This team stood out from all the rest because of their unity and ability to gel with one another.

Varsity singles number one Diana Delacruz (00) returned this year to lay the "Smack Down" on her opponents. Her charisma carried on to the courts, which helped to fuel the hunger of this team. When asked about how her season went she answered, " I do the best I can and if my best is not good enough to win, at least I know I gave my all."

In a span of four weeks, the girl's tennis team had already won more games than all of last year. What is the secret? Maybe all the credit should go to the head coach. In any case, the girls were in a league of their own.

Unlocking the Court

To be successful on the volleyball court it takes pride and dedication, add sportsmanship and you have our girls' volleyball team. Everyday after school the girls would be ready for a vigorous practice that kept them occupied. The determination of the girls was strong throughout the season and was seen in their performance. They started their season off on a positive note with a victory against American. They kept their stride and finished the season well.

Co- captain Laura Leon (00) comments, "Our team had its strengths and we had our weakness, but overall I feel we displayed our spirit on the court." This year's varsity team had a strong group of returning seniors and a few new faces as well. One of the teams seniors Kim Vigallon (00) also added, "This volleyball season has been great. I think this is the most talented team Kennedy has seen in a long time."

Kennedy will miss the presence of the seniors who accepted their diplomas this year. Those players who remain will do their best to carry on in their footsteps. Overall, the team left a lasting impression that gave Lady Titans Girls Volleyball an admirable name.

Commentary

"Cross-Country is the most challenging sport menatlly and physically. Its the only sport that your coach is not by your side guiding you. Your only motavation is your drive to finish. Its a battle within yourself."
Aimee Bowersmith (00)

Kristin MacDonald (00)

Running on the Golden Brick Road

The sweat in ones eyes, the determination to finish a grueling long distance run; on a narrow, uneven path, can only stand for one sport, cross-country. Thanks to the students at Kennedy, cross-country was renewed after two years of absence. Coach Larry Hiebert says, "I'm pleased to be with Kennedy. This is a good school and is full of heart. We have a lot of determined runners out here. They're here to prove that Kennedy is here to stay." This year's team was comprised of three seniors, one sophomore, and a large group of freshman. Allison MacDonald, varsity, comments, "I've always loved to run and the cute guys on the team gave me enough motivation to run for the school." Kennedy has always had heart when it comes to running. The team competed in a variety of meets ranging from Coyote Hills to Lake Elizabeth. All of the cross-country runners hope they can compete next year as well. Until then, they will keep on running as fast as they can with Titan Spirit.

Malik Moore (00) added, "I've enjoyed playing through the years and can't wait to finish the year with a lot of wins." The positive attitude along with strong coaching led the Titans through a good season. Coach David Gonzalez commented, "This is the strongest group of guys I've had in a while, and I think we should do remarkably well." Basketball is a team sport that requires determination, strength, and endurance from each of its players in order to succeed. Bryan Price (00), who was unable to play due to a pre-season injury, had faith in his team when he said, "Even though I'm not there, we still have an excellent chance of winning M.V.A.L.'s. I know we will play to the best of our ability." Overall the 1999-2000 season was a memborable one for all. Rising
Stars

To be a star on the court you need the three D's; Determination, Dedication, and Defense. The J.V. and Freshmen basketball teams both possess all of these qualities. With their high level of talent and extreme motivation, these two teams were on a mission to make their presence felt in the M.V.A.L. J.V. Head Coach David Dommelle boasted, "This was one of the best teams I've had in my seven years of coaching at Kennedy.'' The J.V. team had an outstanding pre-season. With their 10-5 record, they were more than ready to annihilate any team brave enough to test their skills. Shaun George (03) adds, "Our tough pre-season schedule prepared us for the season both physically and mentally." The hard work paid off for the guys as they finished strong in league. The Freshmen team was equally as eager to become stars. Coming off the pre-season with a record of 7-6, they felt they had something to prove. "We had an okay pre-season but we wanted more," said Jason Freitas (03). With their determined attitudes these young men proved to be one of the leading powerhouses in the league. Freshmen Head Coach James Elola commented, "We had a lot of talent and heart on this team. That's what made us strong." After all the hard work these men put into the season it is safe to say that they are truly "rising stars."

Five... four... three... two... one... The clock ticks away as the girls' basketball season comes to a close. Both the Varsity and J.V. played the season with the determination to come out on top. Although their records may not show the heart these players possess, their hard work throughout the season certainly does.

The Varsity squad had a lot of leadership and skill that returned this season. Victoria Cayetano (00), as one of the Varsity captains, was one such player who exemplified this. She returned for her fourth Varsity year and helped lead the team to a 5-8 preseason. "Even though we were losing," she stated, "we still went out to have fun."

The J.V. team was much more successful as they recorded a winning overall season. Led by captain Manpreet Mann (02), the team went 8-4 preseason and won over half their league games. In reflecting about this season, she feels, "We did a lot better than we thought we would. We could have gone all the way [to a championship]." The freshmen players certainly helped out the team and have definitely learned something from this season. With their enthusiasm and experience, future teams should definitely prove worthy of a championship.

Both teams displayed a lot of determination to come out on top. Although the Varsity was not as winning as wanted, they certainly have a good future ahead of them as the J.V. does. With up to five players returning and more coming from the J.V., next season should prove successful.

Genuine Ambition

They have the drive and they have the heart. What is it about the boy's soccer team that gives them their extra spark? Maybe it's those bright yellow jerseys! If that's not it, then it is obviously their ability to stay focused and to play as a team, rather than individuals. Manuel Farias (02) observed, "This was a rough season for us this year. Getting to become a true team was a difficult task, since the majority of the team hardly knew each other. But next year I'm sure with this experience we will achieve excellence." Just as in any other life situation, the guys had to face some tough obstacles. Yet they overcame the difficult times and proceeded to strive for success. Cam Chung (01) revealed, "I believe that our season could have been better, but we tried our best." These young men did not win too many games, but they did stay committed and never gave up. Jerry Torres (02) commented, "Even though there was a time in the season that we were 0-5, we gave it our all every game." Though their record doesn't reflect it, it's evident by the final score of each game that the team played to the extreme of their ability.

Just Kickin' It

Lacing up their cleats and pulling up their shin guards, the JFK Varsity team prepares for another year at Kennedy. This year's team was one that stood out from past teams. The team was full of confidence and all about winning. Coach Jen Dronkers commented on the closing, saying, "I hope that Kennedy does not close. I enjoy coaching here and hope to be able to do it again next year". When the girls soccer team took the field in the "99-00" season, they were full of determination and perseverance. Kristin MacDonald (00), four-year varsity player said, " This year's team held a lot of individual talent, and it took a while for us to learn how to play as a team. At the end we showed everyone that we were not only beauty, but also brawn." The girl's soccer team defensive and offensive end grew as the season progressed. Tiffany Allen (00) said, "Last year's team was about fun and games. This year's team was about work and determination," when asked how this year's team differed from previous years. The team this year carried one key essential characteristic; they played soccer with finesse, making the girls varsity team shine out above other past teams.

Melissa Maddon (01)

"I think this years team did well. We had a lot of new players with potential and a lot of experienced players that helped guide this year's team. I am disappointed that I am leaving Kennedy. I hope next year's team does very well and they do there best and improve. "

Holding Nothing Back

A small and young team, with a big heart, showed off skills to make their school proud. As time went by the pressure to win increased. "I have seen this team come together and help each other out even when they had doubts about themselves," stated Coach Mora. Although doubtful, the coach was confident that his team had a chance to win on any given day. Wrestling takes hard work, determination, stamina, and heart. Every Titan wrestler has all of those qualities and more. Each match, win or loss, gave the team added motivation and more experience to get the job done.

"The talent that this team has is unbelievable, and is a force to be reckoned with," said Andrew Miranda (03). Many people think of wrestling as just rolling around on the ground trying to get on top of another guy, but it is a whole lot more. Wrestling is not a sport of chance, it takes a lot of practice and endurance to win just one match let alone win a tournament in which you must wrestle a number of matches, with very little rest. The scoreboard might not be full of wins, but then again the scoreboard doesn't record the effort put forth by the members of these teams. Both J.V. and Varsity teammates have put forth an effort that matches or exceeds that of the experienced teams that the school has had in the past. With a majority of new wrestlers and an extremely small team these Titans proceeded to fight thier way to the top and suprised most with their skill and effort.

Bye Bye Birdie

High hopes and the capability to win, this was what the 1999-2000 badminton team was about. The team was mainly comprised of experienced players that returned from last year. Coach Nay Thu began the season off with the daily drills, liners, and other basic quickness enhancing drills. New comers were enthusiastic and excited about their first season on the team. However in order to win they had to practice hard and with the help of their coach they were able to obtain peak performance before their games began. When asked how he saw this year's team and how it differed from the years past, Coach Nay replied, "Last year's players returned with a lot more knowledge and confidence towards the matches." This team was on an onslaught of victories, leaving their opponents breathless. The record was phenomenal, giving inspiration and motivation for the following season.

one Love

A loud, "Come on Binh babe let's go!" pierced the silence of the sunny green courts as boys tennis coach, Dan Bega encouraged one of his four returning seniors. Empty water bottles, tennis canisters, and bright green tennis balls littered the courts, everyday after school, as the team strived for another chance at winning the MVAL Championship. "I think the team really has a chance this year at being in with the top teams," commented Binh Huynh (00). The combination of experience from returning players, and the exuberance of the new, provided a strong foundation and future for this young team. "The key to their success is to practice hard not only during the season, but also during the off season," said Coach Dan Bega. Playing during the off season keeps the team up to par with everybody else, "you can really tell who played and who did not, it is very apparent in their game," continued Bega. With the flood of first year varsity players and a majority of underclassmen Bega feels the team will be even better next year and will grow in experience giving them an even better chance at the MVAL Championship.

Although it can be both physically and mentally strenuous baseball is an excellent sport. This is not just a game that one can just walk out and be great at. For these players it took many grueling practices, long hours, dedication, and the most important part of this sport teamwork. Talent also plays a vital role in the development of a team. Without talent a team may be good but with it the team is great. "I think we really have a good team this year everyone gets along well on and off the field," stated John Edmondson (01). The season started off roughly due to rain but with a little help from mother nature and an enthusiastic team, the season turned itself around.

Sliding to Success

Hey, batter, batter! SWING! The Girls Varsity and JV team started their season off with a quick start. The varsity team had an abundance of returning players including eight talented seniors. The JV team had a couple of new faces to help them along the way. Varsity Coach Roger Gonzalez said, "The worst thing an athlete can do is waste talent. Our team is a great example of talent put to work. We have a very strong group this year and I have faith that the girls will excel ." This year's teamwork and individual performance was what made the teams better than before. JV Team Captain Dana Lopez (02) comments on her team, "This year our team came together, we have come along way since last year and the season is looking very prosperous." Practicing everyday and sometimes on saturdays showed the girls dedication and determination. Hard work, heart, and spirit paid off for the two teams. The 1999-2000 season was a successful and a memorable one for this extremely talented group of girls.

Strokes of Gold

Swimming at five in the morning, Saturday practices, wearing practically nothing in cold and rainy weather, sound like a day at the beach to you? I don't think so! Not even to a Titan swimmer, only moans and groans could described how they felt about it but in spite of their attitude it was their life for the last couple of months in the school year. You have got to hand it to everyone that can do this. But that is just the thought of it, in reality it's fun. When asked what sophomore Ashley Jaehnig thought of swimming she replied," I like swimming, you get to meet lots of new people and make lots of new friends on the team." This year's team had a big turnout as for the size. There were about 50 people on the team, and 24 returning swimmers. In addition, Varsity coach Jeff Hancock and JV coach Coreen Waller were there to guide the team. As the days got sunnier, the season was looking brighter for the swim team. There is more to track and field than just running. "Most people think that Track is just running, but there is more to track; like the field event's where most of the team points come from," said Mark Perreira (00). Track also includes the long jump, high jump, triple jump, hurdles, discus, shot put, and pole vault. The sport promotes endurance, stamina, and strength for the determined athlete's involved. "I enjoy the relays, it is a team effort, they need to coordinate exchanges and work together," said Coach Mike. Not everyone can throw on a Titan jersey and run with the purple and gold. To be a Titan is to share the pride that the students have for our school. The student body at our school is its heart and soul. The thing that makes this school unique is the power that the students have to make their dreams come true and our memories real. With the most powerful student body in the district, we fight to remain, while also doing our part in the community as a leader in service. "Endurance, devotion, and unity, of Kennedy show that we are not going down," was the comment by ASB President Veronica Rabuy when asked what gives this school a great environment. The student body will remember memories that they have made and never forget the friendships that they created. The influence that our school has made in the community allows for the student body to be proud of being a Titan while many of the alumni return to the campus to support and protect it's interest. "The friendly environment and many different types of people," said Arlene Avelino (00) "is the reason that Kennedy is a powerful campus for receiving a terrific education." The thought of closure only made the students more determined to be a strong presence in the community. Dedication and determination is the true meaning of being a Titan, which the entire student body here has. The pride of our student body is what makes our school the best kept secret.

MORE Than You Bargained For

Through the judgement to close our school, our staff stood strong in the fight for our survival. The omnipresent contempt toward the closure of our school threw the lives of our teachers upside down. The shock to the students about the closure did not compare to the anger and remorse that the teachers felt. Working long hours without a contract is not only wrong, it is unfair. "I felt betrayed," said Mr. Sletten, "the school board voted to close us when only a few weeks earlier they had praised our staff for the work that they had put in to develop our technology magnet." The pride of our teachers was shown through their support to keep our school open and at the rallies in which they performed. "The students performed well during the Spirit Week rallies. The sarcastic humor about the district trying to close our school was greatly appreciated," said Mrs. Bega, one of our freshmen teachers. The pride our staff has is what makes our school the best campus available in the city of Fremont.

The secrets from our teachers

Mr. Stark has visited the biggest ball of twine in Darwin Minn. just because Weirld Al Yankovic wrote a song about it.

In 1973, Mrs. Putman turned down a ride in a limo with Ronald Reagan when he spoke at graduation and was the govornor of California.

Mr. Webb has owned three radio stations, and was a morning disk jocky at one of them for 11 years.

Mr. Riley was the JFK tennis coach when he taught Mr. Patton and Mr. Bega, whom in turn both became JFK tennis coaches.

Ms. Rauscher has tought in at least 18 different rooms in this school, and that is only in 25 years.

After 20 years, hasn't Mr. Bega changed his style? He goes retro when he reverts to the '70's, during the teacher's dance.

Mr. Bega was young once too, and this proves it, shown here in his JFK senior picture, 1978.

Mr. Mallory shows off his moves as he performs with the other JFK alumni.

Mr. Mallory graduated in 1993, and is the youngest of the JFK alumni, but he was also the Homecoming King his senior year.

Mr. Pfiester pumps up the crowd as he and the others perform as the Beastie Boys.

Mr. Pfiester may have graduated from JFK, but did you know that he was named Mr. Hustle in 1988?

A Blast... From the Past

There is not much of a difference in appearence from when Mr. Stoopin was a senior at JFK.

Mr. Stoopin struts his stuff, remebering back to the days when he walked these halls.

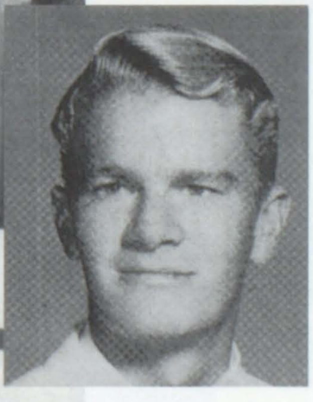
Mrs. Perreira and Mrs. Cole work endlessly on the preparation to make a successfull Grad Nite.

Other interesting secrets from our faculty

Ms. Bergh has lived in a Zenn Buddhist monastary and has also visited 4 other continenents and countries, including Kenya, New Zealand, Greece, and Switzerland.

Coach Mike has spent over 150,000 hours at JFK since it opened in 1965, that is over 50% of the last 35 years.

Mr. Riley has commuted over 320,000 miles since he started teaching here, which is like driving to the moon and one-third of the way back.



Mr. Patton puts his groove on during a lunch rally, as he performs with the Beastie Boys.

Mr. Patton in his senior picture was another JFK alum who came back to teach here.

Class of 2003

Freshmen

What a jump, from being at the top in junior high, to the extreme bottom at a much larger school. This is always the case for the incoming freshmen at our school. The new issues that they faced will change their lives, while they also met many new challenges.

"The adjustment was very strange," said Denise Young (03), "this is a bigger campus and there are a lot more students here." The freshman, not realizing that this would be the biggest influence in their life, were thrown into the vicious circle known as young adulthood.

Their lives would never be the same, the way they are seen, the way they are responded to, and the way they are treated. This is only the beginning of their career in high school, and the doorway to thier adulthood. Now, what they make of it is totally in their control.

Freshmen Class officers; Denise Young (Vice President), Raquel Hernandez (Cabinet), Alyson Noble (Cabinet), Sim Kaur (Cabinet), and Cara Cuison (President).

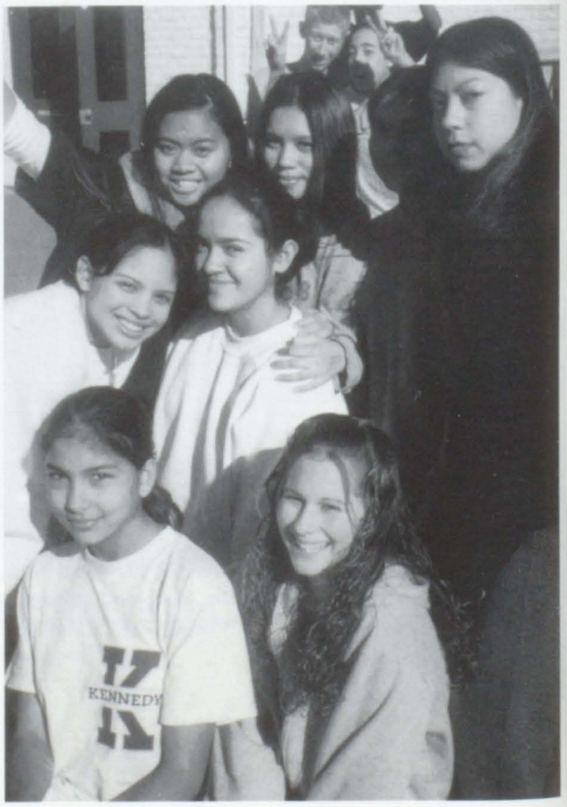
A Day As A Freshmen

You are nice and cuddly in bed, when all of a sudden your alarm goes off and you think "man, another exciting day of getting thrown into garbage cans and being shoved into lockers." Well, not quite, for Carissa Walentiny. Her ordinary freshmen day starts off with her alarm going off at 7 o'clock. By 7:20, she is out of her house and on to the bus, or how she says it "the muggy, packed school bus." When she arrives at school, she walks to her "wonderful locker," and meets her friend Desiree. The bell rings to go to first period and she's off to her computer class. "I'm so excited when the bell rings," Carissa says. Then she is off again to her Math class where she can't wait until brunch. She thinks brunch is "a social party and time to munch." After the bell rings she walks to her woodshop class and asks herself, "what should I make today?" After her class she has Physical Education class. "I love that class sports, sports, and more sports." By now its lunch time and Carissa is hungry. She goes to meet her friends and then they visit the A la carte to buy something to eat. The bell rings, "Yes, Just two more periods to go," said Carissa, as she sets off to her English class and lastly to her science class. "My two favorite classes with my two exciting teachers." After the bell rings, she's back on the "steamy, packed school bus," and on her way home. Now that you've had the chance to see Carissa Walentinys ordinary day, you have an idea what a day as a freshman really is.

Eric Mitchel, T.J. Cruzada, Jason Frietas,& Francisco Ureno take a breather before returning to a tiring game of Wallball.

Tanee Simonetti, Kalia Snell Melissa Velarde, Cristina Martinez & Victoria Kwang get all in a row before beginning their class in the Weight Room.



Mary Jo Aguino, Merie Cabello, Lisabeth Hernandez, Sandra Salgado, Suzanne Autor, Fabiola Escobar, Zorha Sharifi & Nicole Lujan get ready for a hard lesson in stunts and tumbling.

Fresh Freshman! Lonnie Johnson, Jeff Noia, Sukhpal Johal, Andres Blest, and Ebenezer Abendan exemplify that freshman can be cool and stay in school.

This is interesting! Megan Stephens works hard during her Multi-media class in order to earn her A.

"Walking along, singing a song, side by side." Stephanie Gentrup, Ashley Alimadadian, and Catherine Gentrup share a juicy tidbit of gossip during lunch.

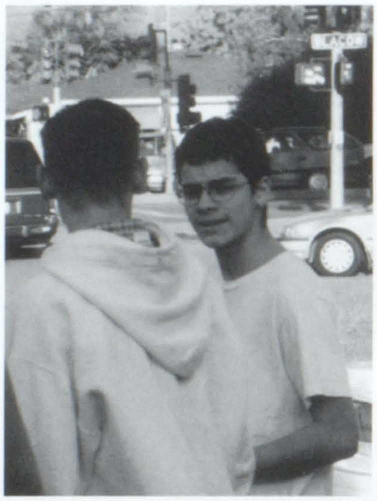
While most upperclassmen drive, most freshmen rely on riding the bus, their bike, walking, parents, or friends for means of transportation. After school, Michael Capri-Dowdy chills with his friends, waiting for his ride.



What is your greatest strength?

When people tell me I can't do something--that always makes me strive for the highest and the best I can do.

Navita Manyisha

What is your greatest weakness?

My weakness is that I am not able to show my emotions, and I keep them in so that people don't worry about me, and don't bug me by saying "whats wrong," over and over again.

Sophomores

One year later, after two semesters of being a freshman, the class of two thousand and two became sophomores. Finally, the adventure of being a freshman was over, and whether this was a good or bad occurrence, being a sophomore was probably a welcomed experience. Yet, sophomore year can be one of the most inactive years of high school. The excitement of being in high school was over, and the exciting activities of the upperclassmen are yet to come. And thus, the positive aspect of being a sophomore is best summed up in a statement by Matt Stein, "It's better than being a freshman, but its not as good as being a senior."

A Day As A Sophomore

Heather Proctor gets up about 5:30 am because of Driver's Ed. She says sometimes she leaves at 6:00 a.m. to get some breakfast. "My friend Ashley and her mom pick me up," she explains. Then Heather trys to stay awake through all her classes, and trys to pay attention, but all she can think about is going to sleep. "When lunch begins I go to my locker to put my stuff away and go talk to my friends," Heather tells us. After school she gets her stuff ready to go home. "As I walk to my friends house I always remember the books I need for my homework. After school every day I go to my friend's house with Ashley, Erin, Nat, and Bonnie,' Then she gets picked up by her mom and does her homework. 'I wait for one of my friends to call to go out, sometimes we go out, but if we don't do any thing I just go to bed.' A welcomed end to a busy day as a high school sophomore. A complicated schedule, yet packed with exciting activities.

Juniors

Class of 2001

It was about this time that the Juniors began to realize there were fewer days of high school ahead of them then there were behind them. Three years seemed to pass by so quickly, and a year from now everyone will go their separate ways. "I really like the Junior Class at Kennedy. I like the teachers and many of the students too. They always come through to help one another," says Gerardo Moreno. The past year has been full of wonderful memories, beginning with their participation in Spirit Week and the Homecoming dance. The Junior Prom will was also successful, and will not be easily forgotten. May they have the best of luck fulfilling their hopes and dreams as they become Seniors.

Chemistry is perhaps the hardest class for any junior. Jinesh Sheth shows his "don't bother me" face as he figures out a few problems.

(Middle Bottom) The graphing calculator has been found as the most significant tool for a student. Jayson Figueroa uses it in Mr. Abrams's class.

(Bottom right) U.S. History has its share of written work. Michael Rodriguez diligently spends time completing some in class.

Junior Life

Jasper Hernandez's first year at Kennedy was a lot different from his school days in Los Angeles. Unlike Los Angeles, the teachers here pay more attention to their students. "They want you to succeed in life. They help you achieve your goals."

Junior life for J.C. is very different from when he was a sophomore and a freshman. He has had more responsibilities than ever before. "My classes got a lot harder and this year is when it really counts, it's a time when colleges start noticing you." Being a junior is serious business to J.C.. Some people have said that their junior year is one of the hardest and most challenging years in high school. Jasper truly believes that.

When asked what J.C. likes most about being a junior he said "I get more freedom, I am learning to be responsible and respectful." J.C. says you realize things when you get older, "You start learning from your mistakes."

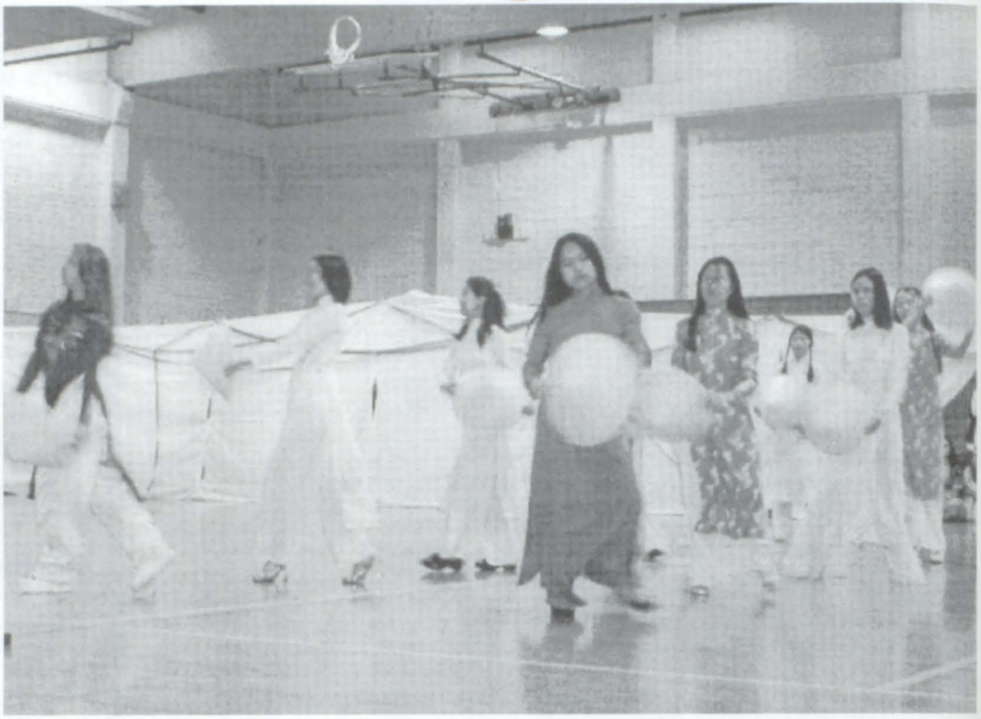
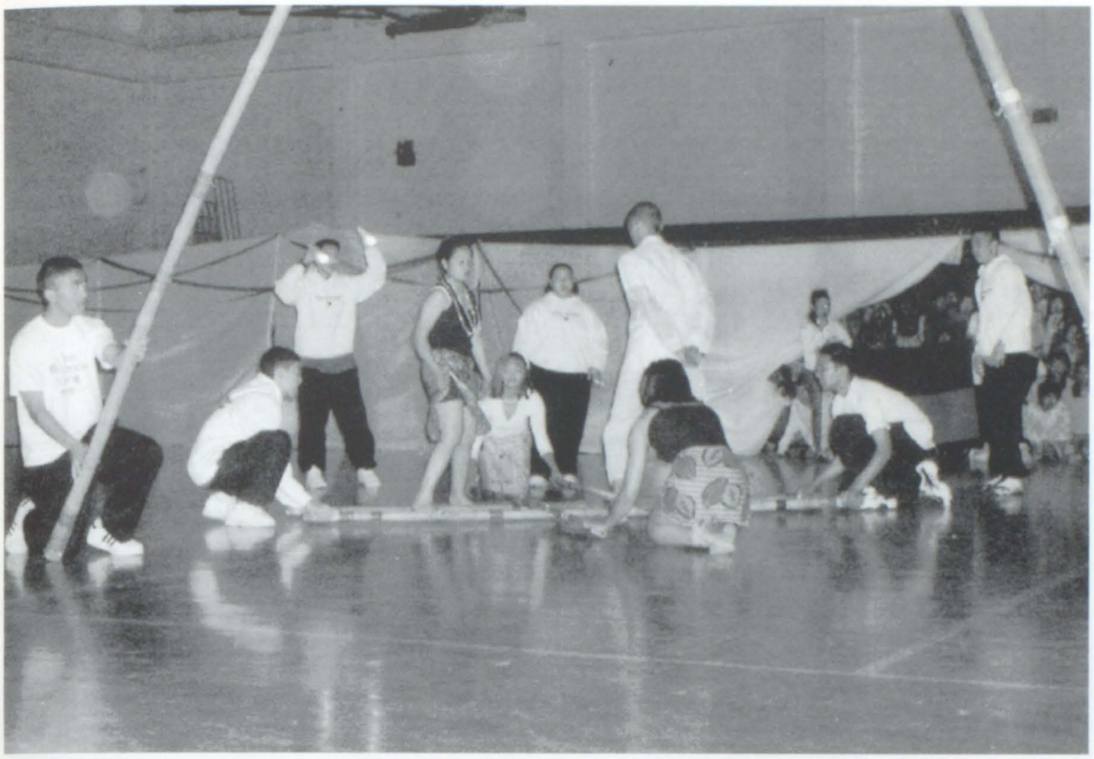
The Colors of JFK

International Week, a time when students of all cultures proudly shared their heritage. Shimmering clothes, beautiful dances, and aromatic food filled the halls of our colorful school. Our student population exemplified a perfect example of "the giant melting pot" of all nations. There are no color lines in our school. The clubs taught people of cultures that many people may have been curious about. International Week gave all clubs a perfect opportunity to share their wonderful pride and heritage.



The Vietnamese Club gracefully performed their "Hat Dance." Their movements were like flowing water, very smooth and eloquent.

The O-Mei Kung Fu Academy, located in Oakland, displayed the traditional Chinese Lion Dance for CSU. Their acrobatical skills and strong muscles enabled them to move very fluently.



Led by its President Sharon Leal (00), the Filipino Youth Coalition entertained JFK's student body with a rhythmic dance of tinikaling during the International Week Rally.

As Ericka Mitchell (02) sways to the beat of the drum, she flaunts her beautiful African dress. The anxious dancers behind the curtain stare in awe. (We see you!)

Muscle man Robert Vargas (00) flexes his stuff while modeling in the fashion show representing the Black Student Union.

Fatima Ahmadzai (00) immersed herself into the Indian Pakistani culture by participating in their cultural dance. The many hours of practice and hard work provided the audience with much enjoyment.

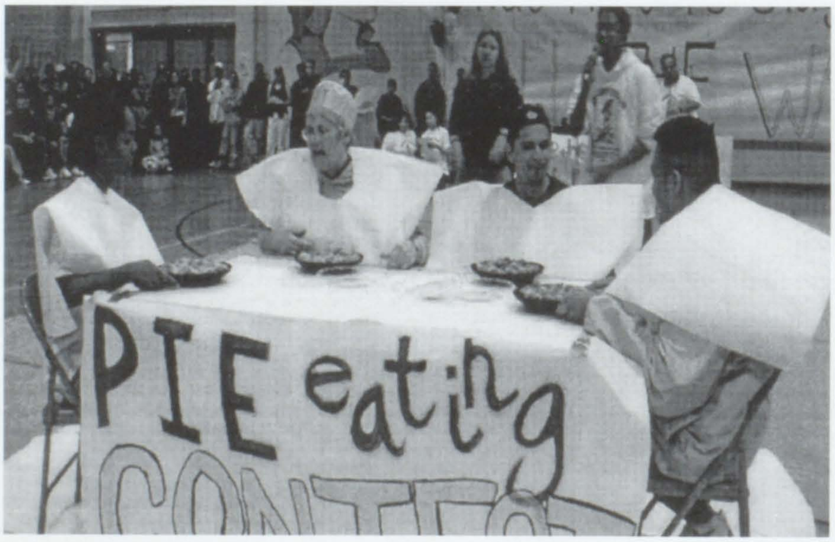
PRIDE



(above) Let's get ready to rumble!!! The students versus the teachers in the battle of the pies. Who do you think will win? Of course the students give it all they've got and defeat the teachers.

(right) "All my love is all I have..." Sharon Leal (00), "and I think you're very special..." and Jasper Hernandez (01) sing a duet together for the karaoke contest. This could possibly be the beginning of a singing career for them.

The Titans Live On

After months of a stressful and vigorous battle, Kennedy has finally won and will stay open. Angry parents, teachers, and students fought at countless meetings with the school board, hoping that Kennedy would remain open. Months and months passed by, and still no progress of a final decision to close or keep Kennedy. Yet almost a year of struggling went by, and the fight to keep Kennedy open worked. Ecstatic and enthusiastic students and staff members celebrated the good news at our Welcome Back Rally on February 23, 2000. During the rally, there were outstanding speakers who gave over-whelming speeches. Dr. Kaiser gave encouraging statements from Kennedy's finest students. An inspiring quote from Scott Siegfried (00) said, "This proves never to lose hope and that no matter what, even when things look bad, that you can keep fighting. When everybody sticks together, we can accomplish anything." The celebration continued with a pie eating contest, and a karaoke contest. Now we don't have to worry about Kennedy closing down anymore. We're here to stay for good!

(left) Paolo Delacruz (01) adds a little twist to Sharon and Jasper's duet song. He beat boxes in the background which gives them a perfect score that tied in first place with Charles Anthony Ulloa (00).

Head of the Class

Academic Top 10

Congratulations to the Top 10 of the Class of 2000! These students have exemplified a love of learning that has helped them earn this outstanding distinction. With their grade point averages ranging from 3.833 to 3.957, there is no doubt they have achieved academic excellence. It was not easy for these students to hold such an honor, however. Although no weight is added to the cumulative G.P.A. for honors or advanced placement courses, they needed to take at least four of them in their junior and senior years to be in the Top 10. Certainly, these students are the academic leaders and models for their peers.

Chengying Lee
Valedictorian

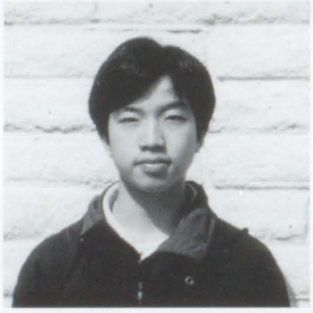
Chengying certainly showed his affinity in math with calculus, which he took as a junior. His helpful attitude and winning smile made him a favorite of both teachers and students. We'll miss him but know he'll be successful in the future. -Maureen Schulz

Kirandeep Kaur
Salutatorian

I am not surprised that Kirandeep has been chosen to be in the Top 10. She has proven to be an exceptional individual. Her dedication, efficiency and propensity for excellence have aided in her success. I wish her the best for her future. -LaDonna Rangel

Michelle Chan

Michelle has many gifts— intelligence, beauty, a drive to know and discover, and great personal charm. As she enters the world outside of Kennedy, I know she will represent Kennedy spirit well. We will feel Titan pride in her accomplishments. -Vicki Baker



Wei Jui Huang

Ray is Remarkable! A Royal Rarity of Renown and Repute, he is as focused as his name suggests. His Rise to the top Rank Reflects his Relentless Reverence for excellence. His diligence will Result in many Richly deserved Rewards. -Martin Abrams

Veena Vanchinathan

Her extraordinary intellect, vision, self-assurance and ability to combine goodness, knowledge and creative thinking skills have empowered her to serve the community well. May she enjoy the adventures ahead! -Miriam deSchweinitz

Rebecca Loy

It is refreshing to know someone who combines intelligence and hard work with integrity, kindness, and a delight in and respect for all good . May her willingness to take on new challenges follow her heart to bring joy to herself and others! -Miriam deSchweinitz

Yen Loi

Behind her quiet demeanor and happy, gracious smile lurk wisdom, intelligence, and an amazing ability to learn. Yen will brighten the lives of all she touches.

-Miriam deSchweinitz

Magi Agrama

Magi was Most Awesome in her Masterful Articulations of Molecules & Atoms. She has a Magical Aura in her quest for learning. I know there will be more Major Accomplishments and Majestic Accolades in her future. -Martin Abrams

Dingding Yang

He is an exceptional student in every way. He has overcome a language barrier to become a successful student and an overall great person in two cultures. Beneath a stoic visage lies an incomparable wit. He will go far in life. -Corinne Waller

Poonam Shah

Poonam is determined to be successful. With her positive attitude, quick wit, strong work ethic and desire to succeed, it will carry her a long way to develop her talents and make a positive contribution to society. She will make us all proud. -Rick Patton

A Helping Hand

Titan Service Awards

"The greatest service to one's self is a service that benefits others." (Anonymous) These students certainly have played an exceptional role for the school. They each participated in either community service, clubs, the Associated Student Body, or sports. They had to earn a teacher's nomination and a special committee's approval to receive these awards. Perhaps their greatest quality is that they were excellent examples for other students to follow.

Thanks to all my friends, my fellow students, and staff members (especially the teachers who nominated me) for their help and influence. The past four years has been filled with knowledge and wisdom. I gave my time to lend a helping hand and did not expect to receive anything back in return. But in truth, I receive what one cannot buy: the joy of giving. "The true measure of one's success is measured by how much they give, not by the amount they receive." (M.S. c/o '98)

-Binh Huynh

I am only one.
But still I am one.
I cannot do everything.
But still I can do something;
And because I cannot do everything
I will not refuse to do the something that I can do. (E. E. Hale)

Why put off something that can be done today, and why not do something that you can do? In life you cannot always take, take, take; you will find out that you need to give in order really to get what you want. Think of others before you think of yourself. Please is a wonderful word, thank you's cost nothing, and a smile can make somebody's day. :)

-Daniel Maxfield

Many thanks to my teachers and the staff here at JFK who have provided a friendly and ideal environment to give so much to. "To just live, eat, and die without any sense of purpose surely represents life pervaded by the world of Animality. On the other hand, to do, create, or contribute something that benefits others, society, and ourselves, and to dedicate ourselves as long as we live to that challenge-that is a life of true satisfaction, a life of value." (Daisaku Ikeda, Honorary President of Soka Gakkai International)

-Charles Anthony Ullóa

"This little light of mine, I'm gonna let it shine." These four years at Kennedy have taught me to be a leader and to take initiative to make things happen instead of waiting for them to happen. The worst assumption that a person can make is to think that his individual contribution will not affect the cause—because it always will. What you do to help someone today can change the way that person lives his life tomorrow. Your life is what you make of it, why not help to make someone else's brighter? Make every moment count.

-Hau Yeung

Ever drifting down the stream—Lingering in the golden gleam— Life, what is it but a dream? Life is a dream for many people like me. We do not have to worry where our food is coming from, about getting shot in the street, or about how to make friends. So, working such programs as the canned food drive, Leo Club's Adopt-a-Child, and Circle of Friends, I can honestly say that it has been a pleasure helping to make life a little more dreamy for others.

-Thu Trang Tran

More important than helping yourself is the act of helping others. Our school is well known for its generosity of heart. Thanks to our Kennedy High family. Please consider this simple thought to reflect. Quote the English poet William Wordsworth, "That best portion of a good man's life— his little, nameless, unremembered acts of kindness and love." Our gifts of time, talent, and treasure are priceless.

-Veronica Rabuy

Thank you to all of the staff and students for your help and guidance these past four years. As a result of your influence, I have grown as a person and have hopefully been able to make a difference in the lives of others. "Too often we underestimate the power of a smile, a kind word, a listening ear, an honest compliment, or the smallest act of caring, all of which have the potential to turn a life around." (Anonymous)

-Karen Oswald

"There are at least four things you can do with your hands. You can wring them in despair, you can fold them in idleness; you can clench them in anger; or you can use them to help someone." (Anonymous) Everyone can make a difference. It is just taking the initiative to act that draws the line between the idle and the helping hands. So no matter how small or unimportant a task may seem, remember, you might just add that rainbow to someone's cloudy day.

We're finally seniors, how is it different than the rest of the other years?

"The difference is that we are the topping of this JFK cake, and without us, this cake ain't nothing." -Romy Macasieb

"This is the year when reality finally kicks in. We have been here for 4 years, having built so many memories. We realize now how important our grades really are, determining what college we get into, and determining our future. Responsibility becimes very important this year, and senior year is the future determining year." -Jaime Young

The locks that bind us from the truth can only be opened with the key that makes our school the best kept secret. As the end of another school year is upon us, we are reminded that everything that begins must end. As we flip through these pages, our minds are filled with memories of happiness, what-if's and regrets. Hann Tan (12th) commented, "I'll always remember the excitement and spirit of the crowd during the rallies." Now is the time to reminisce upon all the memorable moments in our lives. To remember the nights we crammed before the big test day. To remember when we stayed up all night with our classmates working on spirit week. "I'll never forget losing my voice during the rally from screaming and cheering," said Carmen de Avila (11th). All these things, we hold dear in our hearts. These precious moments and memories are the treasures we hold as our own secrets within.

A DEEPER LOOK INSIDE

Linda Phavanant (00), Wilson Lei (00), Janelle Machado (00), Ricky Porter (00), Charles Corbera (01), and Philipp Alvarado (01), take a little peak out of their class to strike a pose for the camera.

Dear Dit,

You have blossomed, from such a goofy kid to a beautiful young lady. You made it through what seemed to be the hardest years at JFK, and you did it. It was a bumpy ride and we all stood by you knowing that you would find a way and you did. Keep reaching for your star and never give up. W love you, and we're proud of you!!!!!

Mom, Dad, Dawn, Donald, and Tony

Yoli (The Baby),

"Estamos muy orgullosos de ti." Dios te bendiga. We all love you so much, you have worked so hard. You're so beautiful. The most important thing is "Believe In Yourself!" We are so proud to see our baby graduate. Congratulations c/o 2000. It's a start to a new beginning.

Love always Mom, Dad, Sly, Slick & Wicked Vero, Ale, Mari, & nieces. Much love, you made it!

You did it!

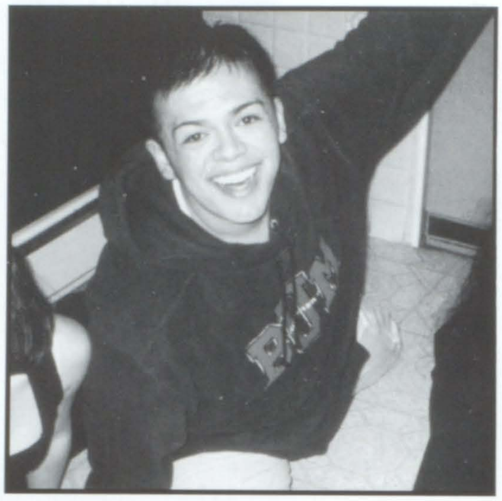
THE POWER OF THE DREAM

Feel the flame forever burn, teaching lessons we must learn, to bring us closer to the power of the dream.
As the world gives us its best to stand apart from all the rest, it is the power of the dream that brings us here.

Charles Anthony Ullóa

I have so much to be grateful for, and so many amazing people to thank. I do thank, above all, my mother for giving all she could to me, and for installing strong morals into me from childhood. I also thank my dad for helping me out when I needed him and for trying to understand a son so different from him... almost from another world! To my stepfather Dale, we have had a rocky relationship! But without you, my life would be devoid of a lot of support, and I thank you. Donna, you are the best! I could not have asked for a better, more loving sister. I love you so much. To my beautiful nieces Anjelica and Anya, I love you girls, and you better make your mama proud, and go to college! Grandma and Grandpa, you have always been there for me and have always had a warm home (and a meal) waiting for the family whenever we needed it. Thank you for making such a beautiful family. I love you both. Aunt Teri, I love you from the bottom of my heart; thank you for your love and support. Aunt Diana, Uncle Mark, Aunt Lisa, and Uncle Phil, I wish you were closer, but even from so far, you have all left a mark on my soul, and I thank you with lots of love. Uncle Charlie and Tia Shania, what can I say besides, "Don't be stupid! Ya know I love you!" To my older cousins Rachele, Sonny, Anna, Sybil, and Vincent, I'm so proud to call you family. I wish your lives to be the happiest and fullest that they can be. Love ya. To my younger cousins Gilbert, Stephanie, Raquel, Marky, Sarah, Ernie, Andrew, and Johnny, you all best go to college! Love ya, too. To my friends Joseph, Janelle, Mike, Sveta, and Luisa, thank you for shaping my life in important ways. You have taught me what a true friend is: someone who accepts your faults, and continues to support you despite them. You have all helped me, and continue to help me, become a better person. Also much love to Poonam, Karen, and Jenn, I've always looked forward to seeing you each day at school, and I will miss you much. Good luck in your future. To Tara, you are a beautiful person and you make my days bright. I love you! To Ronito, you are the best! Thank you so much for all of your love and support. I don't know what I would have done without you. And finally, Debbie, thank you for helping me "polish my mirror" and for teaching me about Nichiren Daishonin Buddhism. I love you so much! Thanks to all my teachers! Thank you, class of 2000, for leaving an impression on me, whether good or bad. No time nor experience is wasted in life. My time here at Kennedy with you all was well spent. Céline existe encore!

Nam-myoho-renge-kyo
alwayz^2, Charles Anthony



There are people around the world, different faces, different names, but there's one true emotion that reminds me we're the same. Let's talk about love.

Deep within each heart, there lies a magic spark
That lights the fire of our imagination.
And since the dawn of man,
The strength of just, "I can"
Has brought together the people of all nations.

There's nothing ordinary in the living of each day.
There's a special part everyone of us will play.

Feel the flame forever burn
Teaching lessons we must learn
To bring us closer to the power of the dream.
The world unites in hope and peace,
We pray that it will always be.
It is the power of the dream that brings us here.

Your mind will take you far,
The rest is just your heart,
You'll find your fate is all your own creation.
And every boy and girl,
As they come into this world,
They bring the gift of hope and inspiration.

There's so much strength in all of us,
Every woman child and man,
It's the moment that you think you can't
You'll discover that you can.

The power of the dream;
Faith in things unseen;
Courage to embrace your fears.
No matter where you are,
Wish on your own star
To realize the power of the dream.

Ce n'était qu'un rêve, mais si beau qu'il était vrai, impossible d'oublier, comme un jour qui se lève. Ce n'était qu'un rêve, un sourire sur mes lèvres, un sourire que j'ai gardé au-delà de mon rêve.

Hey Dimples! Well this is it. I'm so happy we're BF cuz w/o U there is no me. U have truly always been there 4 me, through thick & thin. To me, family doesn't mean blood ties, you taught me that a good enough friend is all the family you need. Someone that won't turn their back or tell you lies you're a friend that all of eternity I'll keep close to my heart, in my soul, always nearby, but never apart. When I met you, and we became acquaintances, I thought you were cool, when I got to know you and we became friends I liked kicken it and knowing the real you

When I found myself trusting you with my secrets and wondering why,
I realized you had become my best friend and I had made a friend for life.

We're a group of five friends who stuck by each others' sides

I hope we're still friends when we reach our destination

Thanks For Being My Friend, for believing in me when I found it difficult to believe in myself... for saying what I've needed to hear, instead of what I've wanted to hear... Thanks for trusting me with your thoughts, disappointments and dreams... for knowing you can depend on me. Thanks for putting so much thought and care into our friendship... for sharing so many good and bad times and making so many special memories with me. Thanks for being my FRIEND.

To The Great Eight: Shorty, She-Dog, TRue Pinay, Casper, Drea, Coop, Nikki, and Superstar. The 8 of you made this a very memorable season, it was my favorite year at JFK because of you. I have many great memories of the 1999-2000 season: 32, the quotes, Black, Purple, Crunch, JFK 44 AHS43, double O.T. vs. SLZ, Half Moon Bay, the T.V. games vs. IHS, the playoffs, and Duece Bigelow just to name a few. Don't forget them or the fact that your coach LLLLUUUUVVVVSSSS YOU!!!! "True success is attained only through the satisfaction of knowing you did everything within the limits of your ability to become the very best that you are capable of being."

It was a long journey but worth the effort. I will always remember the electrifying night at Washington. Keep that winnning team spirit, I know there are many more accomplishments waiting for you at Kennedy. Have a great summer league and champ. I will be looking forward to your next season.

If Walls Could Talk

by Charles Anthony Ullóa

We thought it would be the end of the road.
We thought we had seen our last days.
We thought we'd be bidding a fond farewell,
Tearing apart, and heading our separate ways.

The story, though unfair, had become familiar
And we were supposed to accept the circumstance.
But true Titan Spirit will not and cannot die,
Our slated closure truly had no chance.

If walls could talk...

We were taught history, science, English, and math,
Everything that every student has to learn.
We learned about slavery, government, civil rights,
And the hows and whens of why oxygen burns.

But the one thing we were taught here
That no book could endeavor to tell,
Is to stand up and speak out for what we believe,
Which means, plainly, you must fight like hell.

If walls could talk...

Up until this year, our Titan Spirit was kept secret,
And no one else could ever truly know
About the fire and passion of fourteen hundred souls
Who, bound together, were forced to grow.

Beyond the madness of living in such an age,
Beyond the seemingly endless violence of life,
Beyond the turmoil that everyone must learn,
We have learned to survive corporate strife.

If walls could talk...

But we made it and our goal was met!
Thus, we are that much the better.
We can be proud of what we have achieved
And fought so long to win together.

We have kept the education in our city
Safe and secure for those yet to come.
The deeds of our wholehearted goodness
Are simply amazing and have no definable sum.

If walls could talk...

When rivalry came about, we fought it off outright.
When the sun above burnt out, we lit up the night.
When guidance was in drought, we flooded with foresight.
We made it through the maze, through the storm;
We kept our honor safe from harm.

And the walls have kept our secret.

But if walls could talk, they would say all that we won't;
They would say the things that the newspapers don't.
"JFK Will Go Down In History."

If the walls had eyes, they would see the things inside;
They would see us building our future with pride.
"JFK has given you a legacy."

If walls could talk, they would say all that is true;
They would say the things that the public never knew.
"JFK made it to the 21st Century."

If the walls had ears, they would hear the songs we sing;
They would hear us and the wisdom that we bring.
"JFK's student body is the best, quite simply."

But the walls have maintained The Best Kept Secret.
